Redistricting plan ignites Carmel Valley, page 10

Good golly Miss Molly! Bedtime Beast?

BEDTIME BEAST won the Golden Shovel Award at the 32nd annual Sand Castle Contest in Carmel last weekend. Four families spent the day creating the winning castle, and some of the participants are part of a group called the Sandcrabs who have been building castles for the last 21years.

The theme this year was Creature Castles. The judges review each castle for several hours, then gather to discuss a strategy plan for "the big tease." Parading back and forth along the shoreline, the judges tease every contestant into believing they are the winners. At the same time the sandmakers bribe and try to coerce the judges into selecting their creation.

The event lasted all day and was attended by hundreds of spectators.

"Downsizing" reigns in budget

By PAUL WOLF

AS THE theme of all near-term budget projections has been "downsizing," the newly formalized package for fiscal year 1992-93 is the first step toward that end.

Representing the initial phase in a period of cutbacks, the size of city staff will be smaller by 8.75 full-time positions. Those cuts to employees are in addition to the six frozen positions, which have been the result of a two-year-old hiring freeze.

The $7.3 million budget is $1.1 million smaller than last year's, and it is so for a number of reasons. Key among them is that revenues have been flat as a result of the recession, and that city has been stuck in a pattern of overspending.

This year's budget was the first dose of strong medicine. Finalized by the Carmel

Jimmy Lyons in poverty state?

By JOHN DETRO

A TAPED radio spot, broadcast locally as part of a private effort to raise funds for Jimmy Lyons, charges that Monterey Jazz Festival's founder and longtime general manager was "retired into poverty."

The statement about Lyons, who ended a 35-year festival career when he stepped down at the close of last month's edition, was contained in a public service radio spot aired Tuesday evening over Carmel's KRML Jazz Radio.

After identifying its owner as San Francisco jazz columnist Phil Elwood, the voice on the spot said the Lyons retirement plan was "minimal" and that there was no reason "Jimmy Lyons should be retired into poverty."

Another spot featured the voice of

The New Yorker

WE KNOW that typically and traditionally our place is to reflect on the workings of our community, but to carry that responsibility too far is to invite provincialism. And we have enough of that as it is.

So, in a moment of trial and frustration with one of our favorite national publications we decided to examine the current evolution of The New Yorker, venerable as it is.

Like so many other publications of varying size, The New Yorker is changing its look. Which we find perplexing. Perhaps you've noticed, too. In fact, on page 6 of the Oct. 5 issue there is the notice that: "Regular readers of The New Yorker will note in this issue a number of changes in the magazine's format and design..."

The need for change doesn't worry us. It's the kind of change we see coming to the old mag that is of concern.

We worry that the wonderful urbanity of the anonymously-written "Talk of the Town" will change; that its talent for grasping and portraying the common as well as the exotic will weaken; that we'll actually begin to understand every cartoon (even those esoteric undertakings by our friend Eldon Dedini).

We worry that the magazine will break its habit of giving us the entire story, such as the in-depth look at "Assembling California;" that the four-color flash of ads and graphics will invade our senses; that sensationalism will rout out good sense; that the magazine will change the look of its cover.

We think we have good cause to worry because it is inconceivable to us that a magazine of The New Yorker's stature would permeate its pages with perfume. Which it has, making it difficult on first inspection to distinguish it from Vanity Fair or the Macy's bill.

What's next? Demi Moore, part three? The saga of Madonna's boring sexual fantasies?

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. Letters must not exceed 250 words in length. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address, telephone number and signature, and preferably be typed and double spaced. Anonymous letters, or those with no phone numbers will not be accepted.

Better government

Dear Editor:

I believe the people of this city deserve a much better government. We have fine people who are generous enough to give our city government a few hours per week so I certainly do not believe it necessary to meet tour buses for new people.

We have lived in Carmel for nearly 40 years. When we came here Bob and Ed Fischer were members of Clyde Klaumann's super police force. It was one of the best in the State of California. His men were well trained, conducted themselves as gentlemen and were honest. In all this time I have never known of Bob Fischer to veer off course.

Mr. Coniglio has been here a long time. He is very well thought of and has a reputation he can be proud of.

I have known Stephen Poohar ever since he moved here. He is a fine neighbor, a nice person and honest. His education is excellent and he knows how to use it.

Then all these fine people get the crummy treatment from a CRA-loaded council. It may be time for the rest of us to get our heads out of the sand and have a look around. We may find that as soon as all segments of the city are at each others' throats; the good ol' CRA will jump in and deprive us of some other privilege.

Remember a while back the CRA was determined to tell us how large our homes could be and how to arrange our yards?

Either the people in the council clique cannot think clearly for themselves or they enjoy being lead around by a ring in their nose. Maybe they enjoy secret neighborhood committees and low-grade politics. Whatever it is, it smells!

Saddened by criticism

Dear Editor:

As a former member of the Carmel City Council, former president of the Carmel Business Association and present member of the Carmel Residents Association; I am saddened by the constant criticism being thrown at the mayor and members of the Carmel City Council.

The above people ran for public office with the best interests of the village in their hearts and minds. Taking sideline pot shots at them, from the outside looking in, is an easy matter ... but not productive.

I read where Mayor Ken White wants to sit and talk with one and all who have the interests of the city on their minds. Why can't this small faction come forward and talk it out?

It is an easy matter to continue being a dissent voice from the sidelines while not being willing to take part in the process; to become part of the very problem itself ... rather that getting involved in the solution.

Stop harassment

Dear Editor:

It made me sad to read of the letter sent to three of our city council members. It can't be easy to be in office and I have always appreciated anyone who is willing to give up his or her personal life to work almost full time to make this a better community.

Brooks, Livingston and White are hard working members of the council. They regularly attend community events and are most available to listen. They also spend a great deal of time as members of various county committees for which they receive very little local acclaim. Barbara Brooks has been an active member of the county transportation agency and has been elected vice chair.

These good people do not deserve to be attacked or threatened with a "house cleaning." If the Citizens for Good Government want to have their people in office, they should run them in the next election — not harass the people who have been selected by the voters of Carmel.

The New York Times: when readers scream

By JOHN DETRO

IF THE world gives you lemons, the modern saying goes, make lemonade. Or, if the crossword puzzle is left out of the newspaper, recover from your error as quickly as you can.

Thanks to over 100 readers who called to point out that The Carmel Pine Cone had omitted The New York Times Sunday Magazine crossword puzzle from its July 2 edition, lemonade — in the form of national media attention — was in the making.

This week, New York Times Syndicate President John Brewer praised The Pine Cone readers for reacting so clearly and strongly and the newspaper for responding quickly.

"We feel your editor's response was gutsy while showing great sensitivity to reader needs," Brewer told The Pine Cone. "It was neat the way he did it. People usually ignore the readers, but I think it's very hard to overreact to their concerns," he said.

Sharp reminder

Brewer's statement was the latest in a series of events which started when Pine Cone Editor-in-Chief Ray A. March ran the missing puzzle on the front page of the following week's edition. His July 9 editorial said the callers gave "a sharp reminder that while we are loved, it may be for something other than what we think."

On July 23, The New York Times, with its 1.1 million daily circulation, noted March's "shrewd mea culpa" on its editorial page. The Times article was picked up in September's issue of the newspaper trade magazine Presstime.

Then, March received and approved a request from Buffalo State College (N.Y.) to include his editorial and related materials in a journalism textbook. The specific chapter would be devoted to "defining the feature."

As if the exercise in lemonade-making hadn't been celebrated enough already, The New York Times Syndicate designed and mailed out a promotion flyer to all its clients nationwide under the headline "when readers really scream."

'Nothing like this Pine Cone situation has ever happened before. It's highly unusual—and you can bet the story will stay in our promo file for good.'
—John Brewer
NYT syndicate president

"The whole thing was too good to pass up" Brewer explained. "We described the situation (in the flyer) and sent it to all 400 of our crossword puzzle points (clients) because your readers had such an unusual reaction. We'll do another mailing, sending another couple of hundred flyers to potential clients in the near future."

A powerful reflection

The executive chuckled. "You know, what happened was a powerful reflection on your audience. Readers normally aren't so vocal; yours felt free enough to complain. And you addressed what they had to say. There's another reason we mailed out the latest flyer — to show other editors how people care. Our crossword puzzle has an almost mythical reputation. Your readers valued it, and your editor took the right action."

Brewer paused and then added:

"Nothing like this Pine Cone situation has ever happened before. It's highly unusual — and you can bet the story will stay in our promo file for good."

Mayor White speaks

City must find creative solutions in belt-tightening

By PAUL WOLF

Editor's note: Carmel Mayor Ken White has been alternately conciliatory and defiant in the face of the divided politics of Carmel. This is the second installment in a two-part question-and-answer interview.

Pine Cone: From the start of your term and even before, you've tried to play the role of peace-maker and bridge-builder. Politically, the town is as divided as ever. How do you feel your efforts at uniting the community have gone so far?

White: I'm getting a lot of comment from people that say, 'Keep trying.' I'm getting a lot of comment on the street and phone calls. They see what's going on and they tell me to keep making an effort. That's how I feel about it. I'm going to keep trying.

Pine Cone: When I first asked you to tell me how things were going in general, you immediately focused on something specific — the budget. Why is that?

White: That's the biggest thing I have to deal with. That's critical. We're talking about layoffs. Carmel has never done layoffs. You're talking about changing peoples lives. You're causing turmoil inside the staff, you're talking about a situation that's very difficult. I don't think many people really understand that. We're trying to keep a staff that has good spirit, a positive attitude, and, at the same time, we're trying to reduce the cost to the city.

That's a difficult situation. That's Greg D'Ambrosio's job. He's intending to carry out the council's wishes. You ask me for a State of the Union, or State of the City, I think the budget is the most important thing. When the president goes to Congress for the State of the Union he talks a lot about money and budget and impacts of the budget. I think that's what we're facing here.

While you're writing about Carmel, we're not unusual. Most cities in California are facing the same gut-wrenching decisions that we are. It's a statewide situation. I've talked to mayors form other cities, they're having the same problems that we are. They're talking about dropping programs, cutting people.

Pine Cone: Do you think there's a danger of a city government growing too much during the lean times? After an expansion there is a contraction. If you grow to much you find yourself in a fix, don't you?

White: I think that's the pendulum effect. When the boom time is on, people see the money and they want more services. They want more things to happen. And when times get tough, you adjust, you do some cuts, you meet your expenses and match them with your income.

You swing from one extreme to the next. What we're trying to do in Carmel is keep a middle road, keep a balanced

CCGG critical of budget; still considering recall

By PAUL WOLF

THE PRESENTATION of the final 1992-93 budget has not becalmed the Carmel Citizens for Good Government, fast becoming the organized opposition to Mayor Ken White and the city council majority.

"The budget we have just seen makes all the same mistakes as in years past," said Howard Nieman, who is one of the 13 board members who compose the CCGG.

Nieman argued the budget was a patchwork for immediate problems and doesn't get to their root.

He and three other board members interviewed individually by The Carmel Pine Cone said plans remain to pursue a recall process for White and two other council members if they do not provide a written response to the CCGG's elaborate critique, issued Sept. 15.

It came in the form of a letter, which set a deadline of 30 days for the council to respond — or else the group would resort to "housecleaning."

Nieman said this year's budget, finalized Oct. 1, doesn't go far enough in cutting staff. And the council, he said, only superficially addressed long-range budget forecasting and the trend of sacrificing materials and maintenance for payroll.

While this year's $7.3 million budget is balanced, Nieman argued, projecting a $1.2 budget deficit for next year just delays the problem. "The urgency is now greater than ever."

Nieman also said the 4 percent projected revenue growth for next year is "not very realistic."

One CCGG member, Alan Williams, was a bit more charitable. Though complaining the council managed only "to bail themselves out in the short run," he was heartened that it does appear to be addressing some of the points the group made.

City is losing its pines on private property; so survey reports

By PAUL WOLF

CARMEL-BY-the-Sea is losing its pine trees on private property, a phenomenon that is expected to change the character of the urban forest, according to a soon-to-be presented report.

Over the past 20 years, the number of pines located on residential lots within the city limits has dropped from 3,519 to 3,017, according to a 20-year comparison report prepared by the Forest and Beach Department.

While that drop is only 14 percent, the number of small pines — with diameters of 18 inches or less — has decreased by 31 percent, a bad portent for the future of Carmel's pine canopy, explained City Forester Gary Kelly.

"If this trend continues," said Kelly, "there will be large trees (in the public areas) ringing the small trees on private property."

The survey will be presented at a Forest and Beach Commission meeting Oct. 27.

Older trees on decline

Many of the older and tallest pines, planted after the turn-of-the-century, are expected to die within the next decade, Kelly said.

Statistics without elaboration can be misleading. For example, on residential property there are far more trees now than two decades ago, 20,418 compared with 15,181. However, the number of exotic landscaping trees, such as Japanese Maples and plum trees, has nearly doubled, from 3,361 to 6,432, according to the report.

The obvious remedy for the reduction of pine stock is planting new ones — and the Carmel Friends of the Forest is actually attempting to launch a program in the coming weeks.

"We expect a lot of resistance, but it's worth a try," said Steve Brooks of Carmel Friends of the Forest, referring to canvassing idea that originally sprang from Bob Kohn of the Carmel Forest and Beach Commission.

Homes are larger

Moreover, there are two problems that get in the way of the simple remedy, according to Kelly.

First, homes are larger now than they were 20 years ago, leaving less room for pines or any others trees. Second, the exotics themselves have taken up room where they could be making way for pines and other natives.

Putting all the pieces together, Kelly said, "We are seeing a change taking place in the forest that is not something easily altered because pines have been exposed to increased competition."

The report contains some good news, however. Trees standing in public spaces, besides park areas, have increased in numbers dramatically. In 1972, the number was 7,836; Today, it is 9,828.

But pine trees are not the reason for the increase: they increased from 3,794 to 3,864.

The number of oaks went up dramatically — 2,596 then, 3,557 now.

"Friendly parking tickets" may be city's new PR move

By PAUL WOLF

ABOUT 40,000 times each year, someone in Carmel grumbles.

That is roughly the number of parking tickets that are issued. More precisely, last year the total number of parking citations was 41,853.

The city garnered $405,022 in revenue as a result.

A city's public relations assumes many forms — and one of them, unfortunately, is in the shape of a slip of paper tucked neatly under your windshield wiper.

New concept

Enter the concept of "the friendly parking ticket." In a P.R. sense, it would be the tonic for the usual strong medicine.

"I think we have to adopt a much more friendly attitude, and we must think tickets are not just a source of revenue to the city," said Toni Jepson, CRA executive director, and one of the advocates of the idea.

How about, along with each ticket, including a map that indicates where you can park?

Parking is free at Vista Lobos and along Junipero Avenue. You can pay for parking at Sunset Center and the Carmel Plaza.

Jepson would like to see a note that says something like this: "Sorry we had to do this — for visitor information,

Lean budget forces cuts

City Council Thursday, Oct. 1, its most dramatic reductions for the remainder of this year are as follows:

• Four full-time and one 30-hour position were eliminated through five layoffs. The council approved the layoffs on the recommendation of Acting City Administrator Greg D'Ambrosio.

The five individuals being let go are: an administrative clerk-stenographer; one parking enforcement officer, one of the police department's five; an assistant planner; an assistant planner, one of two such positions at the planning department; a building inspector, leaving one building inspector remaining; and a 30-hour library assistant.

"We are going to have to look at how we are going to work with this loss of 20 percent of our (parking enforcement) staff," said Carmel Police Capt. Don Fuselier about the implications of layoff in his department.

All departments will report to the administration on the impacts of the layoffs and retirements, according to Sandi Davenport, Carmel-by-the-Sea's financial services coordinator.

• Four employees from four different departments have agreed to an attractive early retirement plan. In exchange for four months pay at base salary, the four have agreed to leave the city, either to retire or to look for other jobs.

"Volunteer resignation" is a better expression than "early retirement," as some have referred to the plan. After all, as The Carmel Pine Cone learned, one of the resigning four, a tree worker with the Forest and Beach Department, is 25 years old.

• From all appearances, the frozen positions are not about to be revived any time soon. Because that is so, administration and city council officials consider city staff cuts to be at a total of 15 — 15 from 102 "authorized employees."

• After long debate spanning two budget sessions last month, the council agreed to pare down the Carmel Recreation Department from two employees to one full-time worker.

Moreover, the administration's personnel director will no longer spend a good chunk of his time overseeing the recreation department. The department is on its own — with one person.

• In addition to the 30-hour employee, five temporary library assistants, who are paid by the hour without benefits, have been eliminated.

The implications are bound to be considerable. Therefore, the library board is tentatively scheduled to meet Oct. 13 to discuss how it will adjust to the cuts.

• The forest and beach department didn't incur direct layoffs, but it has already experienced the dissolving of outside contracts. These were for the workers who maintain the beach, Picadilly Park, the grounds of the Harrison Memorial Library, Vista Lobos park and the Flander's Mansion.

The burden is now on the shoulders of that department's permanent staff.

However, the department will feel the loss of the resigning tree worker. According to City Forester Gary Kelly, less staff and fewer contracts inevitably translate into reduced services.

He explained: "We are not so much gardening anymore; we are maintaining. "For example, whereas before we were able to spend 50 to 60 hours a months gardening and maintaining the grounds around Sunset Center, we are probably only able to now spend a quarter of that time."

Muster-by-the-Sea

THE 12TH ANNUAL Muster-by-the-Sea of the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department unfolds Saturday, Oct. 10. Events begin at 12:30 p.m. at Sunset Center, following a parade of veteran and modern fire apparatus down Ocean Avenue at noon.

Presented in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week, the annual muster features teams of firefighters competing in bucket brigades, hose cart races and other events. A barbecue is set 1 to 4 p.m. and is open to all.

At least eight Monterey County Fire Departments are scheduled to participate this year, representing all facets of fire service: municipal, fire district, state and federal.

Admission to the muster is free. Refreshments will be served, and fire safety information will also be available.

Jazz Festival flap

jazz writer Grover Sales, one-time public relations man for MJF. This announcement resembled the other only in its request that contributions to a Jimmy Lyons retirement fund be sent to a central post office box.

Friends

Alan Schultz, KRML co-owner and a manager of many radio stations, identified the private group as "simply friends of Jimmy's who want to help his retirement years." He said the same spots were being aired by Alameda-based KJAZ Radio, KEST Radio in San Francisco and the jazz-formatted KCSM-FM of San Mateo.

Elwood could not be reached for comment by deadline Wednesday.

Informed of the broadcast allegation, Laurel Lyons, JImmy's wife, spoke freely during a long-distance telephone interview. She was at the two-room Morro Bay rental which they occupied right after MJF 1992.

"It's damned true," Laurel Lyons said Tuesday night. "In my opinion, the festival board treated Jimmy Lyons badly. I've been trying to tell everyone for a year and a half. Now it's getting out — and I think that's sort of hilarious."

MJF Board President Myron (Doc) Etienne Jr. was in Dallas on private business where he was reached Wednesday morning. He said of the charge:

"I don't want to get down in the dirt with Jimmy and Laurel. His job was designed as a part time position — from the very beginning — and the retirement plan was based on that fact. Every year, Jimmy's contract contained a clause encouraging him to seek other employment. And he did do some other things (in radio and concert production). If he decided to do nothing else in his last eight to 10 years with the festival, that shouldn't be laid on the board. Jimmy was well-paid by Monterey Jazz Festival. Over the last seven to eight years, Jimmy booked talent and that's all. It's a three-day festival. Booking it does not take a year of work."

Medical coverage

Laurel Lyons said Jimmy receives "about $900 a month" from the festival and is covered by Medicare with MJF paying for "his medical supplemental." She said the fest makes partial payment on her medical insurance — contributing "$330 a month."

Etienne said: "It's my understanding that Jimmy gets about $1,000 a month retirement. We're not a cradle-to-grave organization. We are a non-profit with specific fiduciary duties to jazz education. It's a free country, and they (the private fundraisers) can say anything they like. We're having an all-day board retreat on Oct. 17. You can be sure that this whole thing will be one of our subjects. We'll probably be issuing a press release."

Laurel Lyons: "Jimmy's festival retirement and Social Security are what we get. We don't have any extra money to spend. The bills are coming in. But we're happy here. We live near the water, and Jimmy loves that. I have two pair of Levis and all the sweatsuits I'll ever need."

Ticket percentage sought

Laurel Lyons revealed that, in April 1991, she and Jimmy's legal spokesperson approached the board with a request which would have amounted to a royalty per ticket sold each year. Representing them free of charge, she said, was late rock producer Bill Graham's former attorney, Dick Green of San Francisco.

"The board rejected our proposal," she said.

Etienne: "We decided that (plan) didn't fit. The board felt we treated Jimmy Lyons generously in view of his job's parttime nature. We made the basic deal with Jimmy — who in fact requested retirement — and we'll live up to it."

Other official reactions from MJF would have to wait, he said, until the board met Oct. 17 and drafted "some sort of reply" to the broadcast allegation.

Clean beach campaign

VOLUNTEERS FROM the Carmel Residents Association (CRA) will clean Carmel Beach monthly until next June, according to Gary Kelly, city forester and head of the Forest and Beach Department.

Starting this month, the volunteers will collect paper, cans, bottles and other debris from the beach and the slope below the walking path. They will also sift unburned wood and charcoal from the sand in the area where beach fires are permitted, 10th to 13th avenues.

Between the monthly group clean-ups, Kelly said, individual members of the residents' organization will remove litter. CRA board member Clayton Anderson is general organizer of the volunteer activity.

Council preparing for agreement on Pescadero land swap

By PAUL WOLF

APPROVING A pair of resolutions that lay the legal groundwork, the Carmel City Council Tuesday evening moved one step closer to preserving a coveted 24,000 square-foot lot at Pescadero Canyon.

The council was lending "concept approval" for a creative land exchange arrangement.

The properties in question: the 24,000 square foot Tescher-Levett property — one of four vacant Pescadero Canyon lots in Carmel — and a 5,000 square foot city-owned drainage easement off Mission Street, where Ninth Avenue would be located.

The council's action, like the planning commission's before it, was unanimous.

Thus far, city officials appear optimistic the private partnership and the neighbors on Mission Street will be willing parties. The residents on either end of the vacant lot on Mission must lend their written consent to make the deal possible.

"We are supportive of this process," said Linda Smith, who is active with the Carmel-based Friends of Pescadero Canyon. "We are keeping our fingers crossed.

Months ago, the grass-roots preservation group lodged an appeal with the city council over the planning commissions approval of development plans for the Tescher-Levett property — located in the forested area between the Pebble Beach border and Second Avenue.

The appeal is now on hold pending the best possible solution — that is, the city's acquiring the property at no cost.

The city council had found itself in the position of wanting to preserve the lush canyon terrain, yet finding no means to do so. While the ambition has been to save all of the Pescadero Canyon lots still undeveloped, the Tescher-Levett property is the largest of the four.

A city-sponsored appraisal valued the right-of-way at $295,000. The Tescher-Levett property was appraised at $215,000. The Pescadero Canyon lot, though far bigger, is much less "buildable." That fact was evident in the appraisal.

The council's approval of the resolutions directs city staff to formulate an agreement with the three other parties involved. That agreement should be drafted by the council's next meeting, in November.

CCGG position

"We were listened to, and they are taking action," Williams said.

Another critic is CCGG President Merv Sutton, who said, "I think it (the 1992-93 budget) was a great attempt, but attempts aren't worth much. They needed to cut $1.3 million and (cutting) $800,000 is not doing the job."

Another CCGG board member, Barney Laiolo, a former mayor who lost in the mayoral race against White last spring, said he was disappointed the council didn't call for a department-by-department audit of the city payroll.

"I think Sandi Davenport and Greg D'Ambrosio (financial services coordinator and acting city administrator, respectively) did a reasonable job, but that isn't the whole story."

Nieman was not too impressed by the five layoffs, because, for the most part, "these are the lowest paying positions in the city." (See page one.)

Laiolo said he would agree to go along with the recall proceedings if there was a consensus on the CCGG board. "If we are bringing out the facts as a group, we should act as a group."

Laiolo suggested he doesn't necessarily agree with all the assertions being laid down by the CCGG, noting the argument there was a lack of "civility" on the part of White and council members Barbara Brooks and Barbara Livingston were made before he joined the board.

Moreover, Laiolo said, like the others, he is willing to single out the three — safeguarding council members Bob Fischer and Phil Coniglio. Yet Laiolo said he would do so not because the three have membership with the Carmel Residents Association, but because he is dissatisfied with their "qualifications and abilities" as individuals.

A recall drive would require roughly 400 signatures to make the ballot. At the moment, it is an open question how deep a recall sentiment may be in town.

"Budgets are very topical and we need reform now more than ever, at all levels of government," said Nieman.

Nieman said the group does not have its own candidates waiting in the wings to replace the three it hopes to oust.

"Friendly" parking ticket plan

please go to the CBA office."

What may not seem like a major item of concern is nevertheless of great importance to many. When people grumble, there are implications for business. "We (the CBA) get people who write us saying they will never come back, and that they will tell their friends."

Carmel Police Captain Don Fuselier put forward at least a bit of skepticism: A penalty, after all, is a penalty by any name. "How do you make a ticket positive? Our point is to generate turnover. The only way to do that is to have some kind of penalty."

At present, Fuselier explained, Jepson and the CBA are working on the wording for a brief and sincere message to motorists. The police department is already putting the finishing touches on a new flyer, which will point the way to municipal parking facilities.

The idea, although not entirely a new one, came up in recent weeks at a special mayor's breakfast, held at La Playa Hotel and included guests from various segments of the community.

There appears to be strong support so far. "It's a good idea," said Councilman Bob Fischer, a former Carmel Asst. Police Chief, who spoke in a phone interview. "There is shock value in a parking ticket; it is a necessary evil. But if anything can be done to soften the blow, I am for it."

Similarly, Councilwoman Barbara Livingston said, "It's a courteous thing to do. It's not a bad idea to try and make friends."

Local teachers honored for work in environmental education

LOCAL TEACHERS Elaine Green and Bud Smith were honored at a Rancho San Carlos Foundation luncheon Oct. 4 for their ability to successfully integrate environmental studies into their curricula.

Green and Smith, chosen among 20 teachers, will each receive a $500 cash award from the Rancho San Carlos Foundation.

Green, who teaches kindergarten through fifth grade at Carmel River School, spearheaded a campus-wide recycling program. Proceeds from children's recycling efforts go to environmental organizations such as the Raptor Center which helps protect and proliferate bald eagle populations.

Green also founded the environmental resource center at River School and has participated in numerous fund raisers. In one drive, "Pennies for the Rain Forests," students collected enough money to "buy" 12 acres of rain forest in the country of Belize through Nature's Conservancy for Children's Rain Forests. Green also attributes the success of her programs to parents and community members who have donated books which help foster environmental awareness in children.

One of Green's goals is to bring up a generation of environmentally conscious youngsters who will leave the earth a better place than they found it.

"We have to give children a love for the earth so they will take care of it," Green said. " I try to teach them that animals and plants have a right to live here too."

Bud Smith, who teaches fifth through eighth-grade science at All Saints' Episcopal School in Carmel Valley, said his concern for the environment is one of the main reasons he became a science teacher.

Smith's goal is to give students a better understanding of the natural environment by incorporating field trips and hands-on activities into his curriculum. Seventh graders will spend a week at the Marin Headlands, while eight-graders will visit Yosemite National Park.

He cites an inspirational book called "One Day at Beetle Rock," in which a day in the life of different native animals is told by the animals themselves, allowing students to see the natural world from other than a strictly human perspective.

RIVER SCHOOL'S Elaine Green teaches a group of enthusiastic first-graders to love and care for the environment with books purchased through fund raisers and recycling efforts. get priority, yet the recent layoffs have affected those treasures while avoiding some of the fat in the city's bureaucracy.

As a vocal critic of overspending in past budgets I am now disturbed over the cuts of forest workers and the loss of Dr. Linda Coppens, the guardian of our cultural heritage. Dr. Coppens is an expert on Carmel's history who has worked hard these last years to organize and preserve our traditions and archives.

The local history room of the library is Carmel's only museum, a showcase of our artistic and cultural accomplishments. Only a highly trained and competent professional should be entrusted with the million dollar archive, and only a knowledgeable authority on our past should help its many visitors use the resources there to keep Carmel's renown in the limelight.

Carmel activists know exactly where budgetary overspending has occurred recently, and it hasn't been spent preserving our trees or our history. When Mr. Buck donated a quarter million dollars to the History Room, and when many other Carmelites have entrusted it with their treasures, they did so in the belief the room would be administrated by a top professional.

Last week I was there to research the La Rambla Building, reviewing photos of its 101-year-old owner, Mrs. Kiester, just donated. Without proper supervision someone could easily take some of the signed Edward Weston photos of that building or newly acquired valuables. Coppens, an expert on archival security, also knows how to protect these works from deterioration. Without her our treasures will deteriorate, suffer theft and fall into scholarly neglect.

No one would disagree that the most valuable treasure in the room itself is Dr. Coppens. She's the first item we'd save in a fire there, so she should be the first to be saved during the budgetary crisis. Her proficient memory and her brilliant analytic skills cannot be replaced. In guarding our priceless relics she has become indispensable. Dismiss a city worker less valuable than her and be clear on what jobs are the most valuable to Carmel.

Disputes facts

Dear Editor:

As journalists, you have a responsibility to report what is factual and not hype or provide misleading information to your readers.

The article "Adopt a Beach," from your Sept. 10, 1992 issue, is a prime example of irresponsible writing. I cite the following two examples:

1: "Fix cars that leak oil onto the ground. An estimated 240 million gallons of oil (22 times the size of the Exxon Valdez spill) enters the sea each year from urban runoff in the U.S."

2: "In Pebble Beach, you can't walk five yards without seeing a granite rock spotted with gooey black muck, or the occasional dead cormorant whose death remains a mystery."

Item one. The average car takes five quarts of oil. Simple math says that's enough oil for 192 million cars. According to the Department of Commerce and their 1991 statistical abstract, we have approximately 48.7 million cars on the road. So we would have to empty all the oil from these autos right onto the ground over four times each year to have your article appear correct. Also, how does urban runoff get tot he sea from the Dakotas, Idaho, Pennsylvania, Kentucky etc.

Item two. How do you interpret occasional? Every 10, 15 or maybe, for argument's sake, 50 yards? Pebble Beach has approximately six miles, or 10,560 yards, of coastline. Math says we could fine more than 200 dead birds on the beach. Don't you think that would make local or national news headlines? When walking on the beach I've never seen any oil or dead cormorants. Have you?

So where do your statistics come from?

This is a most worthy subject all of us must be concerned about. But the misuse of information to sensationalize must be curtailed by responsible newspapers. Yours included.

Charles Beren
Carmel

Editor's note: The statistic in question comes directly from a California Coastal Commission leaflet published prior to the Sept. 19, 1992 Adopt a Beach campaign. The entire item reads: "Repair any crankcase leaks and don't drain your engine oil onto the road or on the ground – take it to a recycling center. An estimated 240 million gallons of oil (22 times the size of the Exxon Valdez spill) enters the sea each year from urban runoff in the U.S."

Eugene Bromley, an EPA regional storm water coordinator can be reached at (415) 744-1906 and will confirm the fact you dispute.

Art scene deteriorating

Dear Editor:

One of the things that attracted me to Carmel was the art. I was fascinated with the many galleries and the variety of original art. That was 15 years ago. The art scene has changed dramatically. Most of the art is very traditional, with the obvious repetitions. Innovative artists who strive for something different are continually discouraged.

When I ask to see work by local artists, none are to be found. The local art association and a few small galleries have a smattering of local artists' work, but mostly the artists are Oriental or European; there is some Southwest art — now out of fashion even in the Southwest. Local artists who want their work seen are forced to open their own galleries. Even California artists who manage to get in a gallery conform to the hackneyed old styles that gallery owners say "will sell."

As an amateur artist and a semi-professional art collector, I'm disappointed at the deterioration of the art scene in Carmel. Obviously, galleries have to show a profit, but they are missing out by not looking to local talent to fill part of their galleries.

Carmel is a magnet for talented people in all areas of the arts. We'd all benefit by giving these creative people our support.

Slap in the face

Dear Editor:

It is absolutely incomprehensible to me to think the CUSD believes there is better talent out of the area than within our own community. The listing of the River School with a San Jose Realtor is a slap in the face to the very knowledgeable and hard working Realtors of our own Carmel Association of Realtors.

Local Realtors are listed in Who's Who in Creative Real Estate. Local Realtors have sold and represented Jordan Center, MacFarland properties, Leidig properties and numerous commercial development properties for years.

...Consider what we do for the Can Tree Project, Tor House, Carmel Business Association, local charity drives, to mention only a few. Many of the children who have been or will be educated at River School or the new school are children of the local Realtors. We local Realtors are taxpayers, we support by our real property taxes the school budget and numerous school activities. How can anyone be so short-sighted as to feel that the capability to represent our own community does not exist here?

The CUSD should educate themselves and open their eyes to the many talented local people who can represent the River School sale and replacement at the Middle School site as well as be closely and directly involved in the new properties which one day may replace River School.

approach. We're starting it this year.

I'll give you an example. There are some people who want to buy Pescadero Canyon. In the past, we would have thought about ways to do that. This year the answer from the council was absolutely no. There was no question of doing that. We understood what the budgetary picture was.

Pine Cone: Would you say the land swap deal we have in the works with Chris Tescher (owner of one Pescadero canyon lot) is an example of the kind of creative thinking we need?

White: You remember council gave a number of alternatives. One was to look at Second Avenue and run a survey up there. Second was to look into a land swap. And third I think was an option that maybe we could get together with a foundation and start raising money and that foundation would buy the property.

But the difference now is this council recognizes the money picture is not clear. When they asked about city buying it, the answer was very simply no. Five or six years ago they might have said, "Yes, I think we probably can look into this and maybe come up with a purchase." But we can't now.

Pine Cone: Speaking of land acquisitions, as we look at the Rio Park situation, you personally must have at least some feeling of regret, because I know your great hope was that would be used for a recreation facility — that our children would be using it, rather than our children's children, as it now appears.

White: I'm not disappointed. I think the economic picture is very clear. The use of the money that we have set aside for development is still a question. We're researching that now. Don't miss that point. That four hundred and some thousand dollars that were part of the participation certificates is being researched to see if we can use it to help with the payments.

If we can't, the money's still there. But, I tell you, I believe really strongly that in situations like that, where there's a need, there's another way to solve a problem. It may be that some organizations in town and in the community may have to be pulled together to do a preliminary development of the park just to be able to use it. I don't believe the city should fund the whole development of the park. Economically, we can't do it.

But, I think there are other ways to solve that problem. There are organizations in the community that would benefit from that park being developed.

Pine Cone: When do we start doing that kind of planning and investigation? Is that the next thing to deal with after the budget?

White: No, we wait to see what the research tells us about the development money that's sitting in the account. There might be another use for the park.

Pine Cone: It seems to be almost a theme, finding alternative ways of achieving goals without spending money. We're talking about volunteers for the forestry department or the library. We're talking about private money. We're talking about land swaps for Pescadero Canyon. Is that the new role and method of city government?

White: I don't know. You're looking for a glitzy term, and I don't think there's a glitzy term for that.

Either you sit still, or you move ahead. If you can't move ahead by spending money — which is what's been happening in this city — then you find alternative ways to do things. It may be volunteers taking care of a park. It may be people raising money to level Rio Park. It may be a combination of soccer programs and youth baseball coming in and developing the seed for the park, and the irrigation systems, and the back stops and things like that.

Maybe other organizations in the community would get together and help us develop the picnic areas and the family areas. So there are other ways to do things. If you're going to sit still and vegetate, that's one way — but I don't think the city of Carmel can do that. I think we've got to move ahead.

Wetlands protection

THE CARMEL City Council, hoping to fill the cracks in its land use codes, is considering the development of a wetlands protection ordinance.

The council, taking unanimous action Tuesday evening, directed city staff to create such a law, and to provide clear definitions of what constitutes wetlands.

The definitions, council members and others admit, are often elusive. They suggested it depends on what agency is doing the classification.

Councilwoman Barbara Livingston introduced the concept because the city has no explicit codes to provide for wetlands protection. She considered the Del Monte Land Use Plan of 1984 to be a possible model for such codes in Carmel.

The key areas of concern in Carmel are Rio Park and Pescadero Canyon, where specific setbacks could be required to protect sensitive habitat. Whether those setbacks would apply to buildings or to all manner of development — like the contemplated development of a ball field at Rio Park — was not settled. Council members were giving concept approval and saving the details for later.

FOR SIXTY YEARS, WE'VE BEEN GIVING POOR CHILDREN THEIR FAIR SHARE OF THE PIE.

In towns and urban centers around the globe, where girls and boys go to sleep with empty stomachs, Save the Children provides safety and support. In remote mountain villages, where youngsters begin a life of back-breaking hardship before they've had time to be children, Save the Children opens up a new world of opportunities. Right here in America, where one out of every four children is born into poverty, Save the Children gives girls and boys the chance to break free of a life of despair.

Since 1932, gifts to Save the Children have helped turn the rights of children into reality.

Gifts have built wells and pumped disease-free drinking water to thirsty youngsters. Girls and boys in remote areas have attended school for the first time in their lives.

Critically needed early healthcare has been provided, lowering the infant mortality rate tremendously in areas where Save the Children is present.

As long as one child goes to bed hungry, your help is urgently needed. Circle #0326 or call 1-800-243-5075.

There's still so much to be done. Please select Save the Children during the CFC in October if you're a federal employee. If not, please call Save the Children at 1-800-243-5075 and make a pledge for a child sponsorship or a one-time gift. Carmel Valley Outlook

THE ALTERNATE redistricting map that was approved by the Department of Justice in April keeps all of Carmel Valley in District 5 and provides two environmental votes that would protect the interests of the Monterey Peninsula and the coast. This is the map before the voters in November.

New county redistricting map enrages Carmel Valley residents

By SUSAN BECK

SEASIDE, MARINA and La Raza Redistricting Committee have submitted a new supervisorial redistricting map to the U. S. District Court in San Jose without benefit of public review.

The map places the two cities along with Fort Ord into a new District 4. It puts Pacific Grove and Monterey into District 5, and split Carmel Valley plus Carmel Valley Village into two different districts.

"They don't give a damn about Carmel Valley," said Allan Sandstrum, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association. "If a judge approves this new redistricting map without public review, we will oppose it with every resource available to us."

He said that the proponents of the plan are acting in self-interest.

"The valley is historically a community by geography, demography, and interests. It has little relationship to the new district being proposed," said Sandstrum.

The new map would not serve the interest of the upper Carmel Valley population and is an overall bad plan, he added. "We don't like it. If nobody cares about Carmel Valley, then who will? We have to look out for ourselves, and incorporation will be investigation carefully."

District 5 is the current designation for Carmel Valley. Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman represents the area.

If the latest proposed map is approved by the courts, all of the area between the mid-valley segment of Carmel Valley along Carmel Valley Road east to almost the Salinas River and north to Castroville will be in Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck's District 2.

"It's a disaster to all of us in the valley," said Fran Farina, director of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and a Carmel Valley resident.

"It is cutting us off from the waist down. It's totally inappropriate from our perspective. We will have to consider very seriously incorporation. There would be no other alternative," said Farina.

The Carmel Valley Master Plan does offer protection, she said, but what would be esthetically acceptable to the valley may not be to the newly proposed district.

"It reduces us down to one environmental vote on the board of supervisors. It will impact all of us on the peninsula, and what happens with Big Sur?" said Farina.

She instead urges the voters to participate in the referendum on the November ballot and vote for the map approved in April by the federal department of justice.

"I'm hoping in the next months we can educate the public. I will be personally involved because it is critical to all of our welfare.

This new twist to the redistricting of Monterey County has only added to the complexities of the issue.

In April, the Department of Justice approved a district map adopted by the county board of supervisors. It provided two Hispanic districts in the Salinas Valley and two environmental districts on the Monterey Peninsula

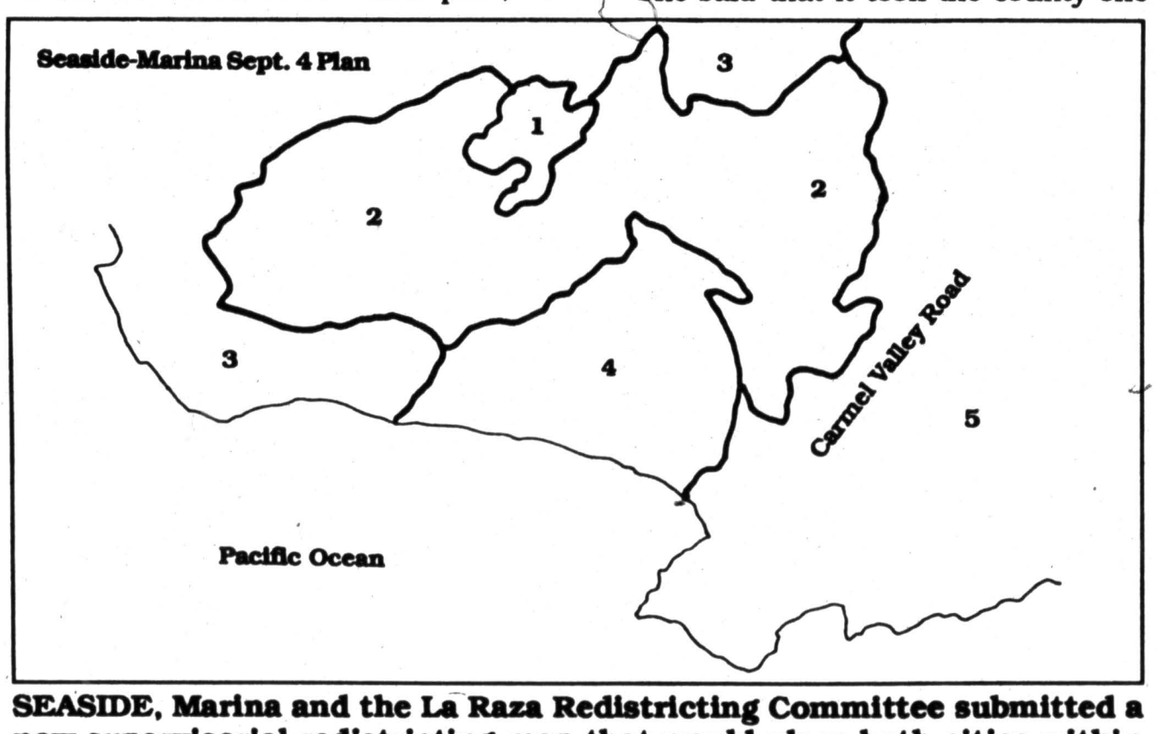
But, it was unacceptable to North County, which filed for a referendum petition for county voters to take matters into their own hands in November.

"If the April map is defeated in the referendum, most likely this new map proposed by Seaside, Marina and La Raza will be imposed by the court," said Strasser Kauffman. "It would have devastating effects on representation for the historical concerns of the Monterey Peninsula. There will be one environmental vote instead of two."

She said that it took the county one year to revise the redistricting map that was approved by the justice department.

"It was done with intense scrutiny and many public workshops. I understand and am sympathetic to the objections of the map, but this new map that splits Carmel Valley has never been publicly reviewed. It is most disturbing," said Strasser Kauffman.

The public has the right to review other options, she added. A yes vote for the county's adopted map would be helpful to the court's decision. "The voters carry the weight of persuasion. It is most important to be informed about the boundaries before them."



SEASIDE, Marina and the La Raza Redistricting Committee submitted a new supervisorial redistricting map that would place both cities within District 4. It also splits Carmel Valley in half along Carmel Valley Road.

'Mutuality' is key to success

By SUSAN BECK

ASSEMBLYMAN SAM Farr addressed the need for "mutuality" between businesses and residents at a Carmel Valley Kiwanis luncheon at Hidden Valley last week.

"What we have to do is develop a mutual consensus. Where do we want to be?" said Farr.

First, he said, there needs to be a better articulation of goals rather than regulations.

"A deadlock situation was created by the state's deciding over the last 10 years to be an 'era of limits'," said Farr. "We limited out the sources of revenue."

It is time he said to develop a climate of cooperation between residents and businesses to address environmental concerns, yet, at the same time, generate new sources of revenue.

"It is necessary to define specific area goals. We need to know where we are going. We need to have the confidence that we are not going to hell in a basket," said Farr.

Despite resident versus business conflicts in Carmel and the state's cuts of $100,000 of the city's $7.3 budget he said that Carmel's "integrity" is an example of a community that thrives without government subsidies.

Even with the city's budget problems, "most cities would trade with Carmel anytime because its future seems brighter," said Farr.

Carmel's strength comes from working within a limited size with restrictive spaces for the community, which, he said, "supports the argument of growth management."

He said that Carmel Valley has a slow-growth orientation, too. As a past member of the county's board of supervisors he was instrumental in getting the Carmel Valley Master Plan refined to accommodate future growth.

"What is needed everywhere now is the confidence to make changes in the community to accommodate the residents without worrying that it will cause massive growth." said Farr.

"But, you can't do everything overnight. For any project, it takes awhile. You can't turn a supertanker around in one big spin."

He cited the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary as a perfect example of a "mutual consensus" between the community and business.

In 1977 off-shore drilling was a real possibility in Northern California.

"It took 15 years," said Farr, "but the cooperation between business and residents combined the economic and environmental interest that will be good for the future. We turned a negative into a positive."

Farr represents the 28th District, which includes the Santa Cruz Mountains, agricultural regions near Watsonville and Castroville, the coastline of Monterey Bay, and the Monterey Peninsula.

Tourism, agriculture, fishing and timber are the economic strengths of the district. Farr said that he is dedicated to preserving the environment so each may prosper. "My focus has always been on environment protection, education excellence, and economic prosperity, and I tailors all of my legislation toward those goals."

ASSEMBLYMAN SAM Farr, left, accepts a Certificate of Appreciation from Gary Carmichael, Chief of the Mid-Carmel Valley FireDepartment.

Understanding Golf

By JANET COLES

THE "MAKEABLE" putts are missed because of fear or a negative attitude, not as a result of faulty technique. I feel putting is 95 percent confidence and inspiration and five percent technique.

This confidence has to be the golfers greatest single weapon on the green. If you believe the ball is going into the hole, many times it will, even if the technique is unorthodox or completely incorrect. If you do not believe the ball will go in, most of the time it will not, even though your technique may be flawless.

Practice builds confidence. And confidence is a clear, vivid picture in your mind of something you have done before and know you can do again.

Therefore, spend the majority of your time practicing putts you can and should make. I feel the "makeable" putts are six feet and within. The more six-foot putts you make, during practice or on the course, the more confidence you will build in your putting, and the more relaxed you will become as a golfer.

I guarantee it!

(Editor's note: Janet Coles is a member of the Ladies Professional Golf Association and toured 14 seasons, winning four tour events. She retired as a top 30 all-time leading money winner. Coles teaches golf at Rancho Canada Golf Club in Carmel Valley and can be reached at 624-0111.)

Professional putting clinic offered

PGA PRO Janet Coles will hold a putting clinic at the York School Golf Scramble at Laguna Seca Golf Course Friday, Oct. 9 starting at 1:45 p.m.

The York School Golf Scramble brings together individuals and teams from the community for a day of fun and competition to benefit the scholarship program at the school.

Four out of every 10 students enrolled at York School receive financial aid.

For more information about the event call 373-4438 or 422-4299.

Last Carmel Valley Ranch member resigns

By SUSAN BECK

NICK MAROTTA, one of the founders of the exclusive Carmel Valley Ranch Resort, has resigned his position on the board of directors.

Under the new leadership of the federal Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), a board meeting was held Sept. 28 at which time Marotta was advised that his interest in purchasing the resort may be considered by other bidders as unfair trade practices.

Carmel Valley Ranch is up for sale as the result of its parent company, Landmark Land, being denied protection of bankruptcy.

Marotta has 12.5 percent interest in the only Landmark Land holding that is solvent. He was also the only remaining board member. The board now consists of Charles Bates, S. Chevis Hosea, and three attorneys.

"I'm definitely coming in with a bid," said Marotta. "RTC said they would be settling with the membership within the next 30 days. They also plan to have a new owner by January 1993."

The RTC group has hired Marotta as a consultant in addition to making him an accredited creditor.

"I was able to eliminate the legal procedure to prove ownership," said Marotta. "So far, RTC has treated me very well. What they've told me makes sense. One hears horror stories, but my experience has been very good. They are being straight forward, and I'm happy with everything."

He said that in the past there have been thousands of lenders, and as many offers to buy the ranch.

"There hasn't been one that has qualified yet. The problem is the property has conditions set by the county such as widening Carmel Valley Road," said Marotta.

One other prospective buyer is Ed Haber, owner of Quail Lodge and his new subdivision, Quail Meadows, in Carmel Valley.

"We are always interested in other properties," said Haber, who is familiar with county conditions. He recently added a completely new intersection along Carmel Valley to access his housing development.

DURING THE past eight years the Sheriff's Advisory Council has contributed over $175,000 to purchase items that are not available in the Sheriff's Department's budget.

Fundraisers like the one held last weekend, in addition to annual dues and private donations have helped the department purchase its new Incident Command Vehicle, a recruitment van, radio equipment, off-road vehicles, surveillance equipment, hand-free microphones, underwater cameras, and more.

For more information about the Sheriff's Advisory Council write to: 8000 Valley Greens Drive, Carmel, 93921.

What about earthquakes?

THE CALIFORNIA earthquake stories have been circulating for years, yet for years it seems like everyone and their brother moves here anyway, perhaps because California is, after all, a "state of mind" and a Virgo state. I love California and wanted to live here since I was a little girl. My wish came true in the winter of 1990 and I felt that I found true paradise. Everyone said to me after the 1989 earthquake, "you're not serious, you're not moving to California are you? An earthquake could kill you, have you experienced one?" This went on and on. I smiled and always answered the same thing, "God wouldn't put me in a place that wasn't safe," and I settled in the prettiest village in the world, Carmel. P.S. I wasn't dumb, I researched the way any good astrologer would, comparing the 1906 earthquake and the 1989 one, both centered in San Francisco and found many similarities. In 1906 the Sun was in 27-degrees of Aries and in 1989 it was 24-degrees of Libra... two signs that are exactly opposite each other by 180-degrees. Ann Parker, who wrote "Earthquake Predictions," said she found through her study of 376 earthquakes that earthquakes happen when the Sun is in the signs of Aries and Libra more than the other signs. Aries birthdates are From March 20 through April 19, while Libra is Sept. 23 through Oct. 22.

The times of the two "big ones" (1906 and 1989 earthquakes) were opposite. In 1906 the time of impact was 5:14 a.m. and in 1989, the time was 5:04 p.m. The 1906 quake was before sunrise, while the 1989 one was before sunset. In 1906, the Sun was in the 1st house (of physical damage) while in 1989, it was in the 7th house of partnership. 80 percent of the 1989 quake was above the horizon in the chart, making it top-heavy and not very stable as the Nimitz Freeway collapsed, and an office building went from four floors to one.

The 1906 quake experienced similar imbalances. Imbalance or instability is ruled by Neptune (the planet of mystery and rarely predictable) and is responsible for 52 percent of earthquake charts. What is also apparent is that in each of these earthquakes, the erratic planet of Uranus was in Capricorn (earth sign) both in 1906 and 1989, and Uranud orbits around the Sun every 84 years. Interesting, isn't it?

In layman's terms

Next, let's look at why earthquakes will continue to happen in layman's terms. According to the scientists involved in the 1988 film entitled, Stopping the Coming Ice Age, which I was privy to see this past week, shows that a 20-year cycle or Ice Age started in 1975 which began a rapid cooling process where the climate cools suddenly. Snow therefore builds up, polar ice sheets put more and more pressure on earth, so there is a connection between the increasing cold and the number of earthquakes we've been experiencing. The colder it gets, the more earthquakes we're going to get, thus ice and snow accumulate on the poles and press down, causing it to bulge at the seams much like a balloon. This triggers the already stressed earthquake faults into slippage and earthquakes happen. It also causes volcanoes to erupt which is even more dangerous because it squeezes the molten magna and causes severe eruptions and once again, the colder it gets and the more and more snow that pushes down on the poles, the more magna is compressed, and then volcanoes "throw up." (Source: Secrets of the Soil, Peter Tompkins and Christopher Bird... available at Thunderbird Bookstore in Carmel).

I'd keep both eyes on Mt. St. Helens for the trigger point to future earthquakes in California followed by Tambora, El Chichon types and with continuous erupting dust capable of eventually blocking the sun and plunging us into an irreversible Ice Age.

Next week, Where do you belong in all this (safe places to live)? In future weeks, I'll be talking about what's making our forests die and what we can do to minimize the dangers we face. I'll be having discussions with prominent scientists that I've already been in touch with who are trying to provide workable solutions for the future of mankind. Got a question, comment, contribution, or want a consultation? Call me at (408) 624-2881 or write: P.O. Box 223825, Carmel, California 93922.

FIV update

FELINE IMMUNODEFICIENCY Virus (FIV) was first discovered and isolated at a cat breeding facility in Northern California in 1987. It is similar to HIV, the immunodeficiency virus in humans, so it is sometimes referred to as Feline AIDS. There is no danger of humans being infected by FIV because viruses of this type are "species specific," meaning they will only infect members of the same species.

FIV is typically spread by biting. The virus is present in saliva but researchers believe that transfer of blood cells is necessary to transfer the disease. Infected mother cats have given birth to virus-negative kittens and unlike HIV, kittens may remain negative even though they nurse.

The disease seems to have five distinct stages but cats may remain relatively healthy between bouts. This is another reason why it's so important for your cat to have routine medical exams. Diagnostic tests can uncover this disease and aggressive treatment can prolong your cat's life.

There is no vaccine to protect against FIV. The only sure preventive is keeping your cat indoors.

Walking your dog

In the past I've talked about the importance of putting a leash on your doggy and taking him out for a nice stroll. I really feel this is a dog owner's obligation because it's absolutely essential for the average dog's mental and physical well-being. If you feel you don't have time to walk your dog, or engage him in some sort of one-on-one physical activity with him, maybe you shouldn't have a dog at all. Dogs need to be walked, love to be walked, deserve to be walked!

Dogs get bored, just like people, if they don't have any variety in their lives. Have you noticed what happens to your dog when you bring out his leash? He becomes a jumping, wagging, wiggling, whimpering bundle of excitement! My dogs are more thrilled to see a leash than a dinner bowl so walks must be a truly joyful time for them.

As I said, use a leash. Allowing your dog to run off-leash in most cities is a crime — literally and figuratively. Every dog that is hit by a car is off-leash. Most, according to their owners, had "never run into the street before" but it only takes one time for a tragedy to occur.

So grab a leash, call your dog and have yourselves a fine walk. It'll do both of you a world of good.

Indian summer, winter waves arrive

PENINSULA SURFERS have enjoyed overhead waves for the better part of the last two weeks, thanks to a sizeable low pressure system near the Gulf of Alaska that forecasters said might deliver a bit of rain to the area. The swell peaked Wednesday, Sept. 30, with an eight to 10-foot northwest swell wrapping onto outer reefs and delivering big quality waves to those took the challenge. Wednesday, Sept. 30 through Friday, Oct. 2 were the best days, with the swell gradually dissipating and northwest winds returning over the weekend.

However, as of this writing, a high pressure system is sitting over the central coast, which should create an offshore flow and favorable surfing conditions through the week. If this first month of winter wave action is any indication, the winter of 1992-93 could surpass last year's quality and consistency.

Eight-foot boards and even longer seem to be more popular this year in tackling the big stuff. It will be interesting to see who's out on the really large days this winter...

LARGE WAVES have already claimed one man's life this season.

The body of a 37-year-old Salinas man was recovered Oct. 4 after he was apparently swept off a rock while fishing Rocky Point with two co-workers that morning.

The body was spotted floating about 200 yards off-shore by an Army rescue helicopter, nearly an hour-and-a-half after the incident was first reported at 10:30 a.m.

Discretion is the better part of valor. Know your limits. Be ocean safe this season!

STATE SENATOR Henry J. Mello (D–Watsonville) announced Sept. 23 that state acquisition of Fort Ord's coastal property has been approved. Senate Bill 710, just signed by Governor Pete Wilson, allows the State to acquire six miles of beachfront property at Fort Ord once the base closes.

Said Mello: "This 1,300 acres of beachfront property is a very scenic and highly-coveted piece of land. I am hopeful that it will be granted to the State by the federal government."

We hope so too. These six miles of coastline undoubtedly contain many sandbars as yet unexplored. Access to the area would also likely lighten crowds at other Monterey Bay locations, particularly Marina State Beach and the old sand plant.

Charity du jour

IN THE years before the inauguration of the Monterey Peninsula Designer Showcase, the Alliance on Aging Auxillary produced the "Wish Tree" at Carmel Plaza at Christmas-time, a "Century of Fashion" show, a tea tasting and a party at Stonepine in Carmel Valley. All nice, low profile fund raisers. The Alliance was, in the modest words of Development Director Pat Sandstrum, "building to the size of a charity such as Hospice."

Truthfully, the Alliance was not in the same league as Hospice. Rather than make a semantic distinction between aging and dying, it's more to the point to say there weren't enough of the right people on the Alliance team. Why do people choose one charity over another? Sandstrum quotes policy: "Altruism, social contact and guilt are the most common reasons for supporting a charity," and adds her own aside, "We'll take whoever we can get, however we can get them."

Because most non-profits have been abandoned by federal, state and local governments, they compete fiercely for the private sector's donation. They know an exciting party or the imprimatur of a social celebrity, such as Virginia Stanton, are often the criteria people use when choosing a charity.

It's unfortunate the success of charities is often based on social status, but the Alliance on Aging can now say it's closing ground on Hospice. Edie Karas and Linda Brockman of the Alliance on Aging Auxillary decided on a grandiose event to attract new people to their cause. The Monterey Peninsula Designers Showcase, the brain child of Karas, Brockman and Randell Bishop, has all the right ingredients; a Pebble Beach address, a historic setting and a peek into the fantasy world of the very rich. Their idea, a new one for the peninsula, has already enticed hundreds of seasoned charity stalwarts to come out and see Cheviot Hill, the estate of the late Col. Allen and Hestor Griffin, transformed from an vacant property in the real estate listings to a vibrant villa reminiscent of the old days.

"This is good for the Alliance," said Brockman at the gala preview opening of the Designer Showcase. "We're not sure how much money we'll make, but we're happily and busily recruiting new members to build a stronger Auxillary."

The old guard should take note. Competition extends beyond dollars to volunteers. Granted, the Monterey Peninsula has been called the volunteer capital of the world but there are only so many bodies to go around.

Dust off your thinking caps before it's too late. Those tried and true formulas that have worked for so many years may need a new spin to attract a younger, more sophisticated audience and to hold loyal, but dwindling long-time supporters. Or, charity volunteers can take an innovative approach, relieve themselves of the burden and simply ask donors to send a check.

OVER THE TOP

Years of negative political campaigns and public relations hype have backlashed. We suffer from collective numbness. "Just another pitch," is our reaction to a two-for-one offer, or a promise of the best this or that. This season hospitality industry public relations people are stretching their imaginations to get our attention hoping we'll open our jaded and faded pocketbooks.

How does "Nights in White Satin" at Hotel Vintage Park in Seattle (rose petals scattered over the sheets) grab you? Or, are the choices of a "Clam Bake" (a $25 food credit at Bentley's Seafood Grill & Oyster Bar) or "Jail House Rock" (sourdough bread and Calistoga water) at the Galleria Park Hotel in San Francisco enticing? Downtown, near the cable car turn, Monticello Inn and Corona Bar & Grill invite you to "Siesta & Fiesta" while the Hotel Triton has announced its "Shop And Drop" package (discount coupons to dazzling stores).

Hold onto your cholesterol count. Silks restaurant at the Mandarin Oriental, also in SF, is presenting a week of menus featuring foie gras from the leading supplier to chefs around the world, D'Artagnan, Inc.

Here at home, if the golfer who has everything can stretch from a beer budget to fine wines, he'll savor his favorite round at Pebble one more time with "The Series One Commemorative Wine Collection." The 18 holes of Pebble Beach Golf Links have been "sandcarved" and painted onto 18 bottles of specially selected California red wines from some of the foremost wineries in California. The flyer says, "As with all good wines and most golfing memories, this collection is meant to age well and prolong enjoyment and conversation for years to come." Please pass the church key.

JAMES BRYANT of Renaissance Winery donated wines to the Designers Showcase. Sherri Reid, Carmel shopkeeper, donated a smile. The Designers Showcase is open to the public Oct. 1 - Nov. 1. Call 372-1090 for ticket information.

SCOOPLETTES

From Carmel Valley comes the news that Ellen Osborne, granddaughter of S.F.B. Morse, and Ellen Devine, great niece of Morse, are in the area filming "Rancho Fandango," for Signs of Life Films. Both women are based in Mill Valley, but are working out of the Morse "River Ranch" in Carmel Valley. They've been shooting on location at Holman Ranch and Rancho San Carlos, Hastings Natural History Reserve,, River Ranch and Watsonville. Osborne the producer, has an academy award for her work in student documentaries and Devine, production manager, specializes in commercials. "Rancho Fandango" will be shown at universities and film festivals.

Goldie Hawn and husband Kurt Russell hopped a private jet to the Monterey Peninsula last week. Final destination? Guess.

Padre Sports Review

By James Genone

Big plays topple Padres in league opener

IN A game that was a battle of big plays, the Spartans of Gonzales had one big play too many as they beat Carmel 21-14 last Friday. Gonzales scored the go-ahead touchdown with three minutes left to play, and a late Padre drive to tie the game was halted by a Spartan interception.

"I thought our defense did a real fine job stopping the Gonzales running game," said Padre head coach Craig Johnston. "It was the big plays that killed us."

The game looked to be close from the start. The score was tied 7-7 at the half, and 14-14 with four minutes left to play in the fourth quarter. Carmel had the ball on fourth down with 11 yards to go on their own 46- yard line. The Padres elected not to punt, and went for the first down—but failed to convert. Instead of being deep in their own end of the field, Gonzales suddenly had great field position, quickly capitalizing to take the lead for good.

Gonzales scored on passes of 65, 50, and 25 yards, accounting for 140 of the Spartans 161 passing yards. The Padre defense all but shut down the vaunted Gonzales running attack, which ground out 151 yards, far below their near 400-yard average. Spartan running back Ernie Botello was held to 44 yards, after amassing 520 in his previous two games. The Carmel defense was led by the hard-hitting of Kyle Koontz, Evi Plata, and Marc Garza.

The weakest link in the game for the Padres was an inconsistent offense. Carmel quarterback John Geisler looked good at times as he rushed on a dozen plays for 77 yards, and completed 19 of 31 passes for 162 yards. He threw an 11-yard scoring pass to Eric Eyerman, and ran 15 yards on a critical third down play for the other Carmel touchdown. Unfortunately, the offense didn't execute as crisply as they had a week earlier against Monte Vista. Geisler looked hesitant when passing and, although he was hitting his receivers, held the ball too long before throwing. He also chose some inopportune times to run with the ball, especially late in the game. Fortunately, Geisler, who is only a sophomore, has shown great athletic ability, and will no doubt improve as he gains experience. Poor pass protection may also have contributed to some of Geisler's lack of rhythm. Don't be surprised to see changes in the offensive line for this weekend's game. Many lineman have been starting on both sides of the ball, and probably need a breather.

This weekend the Padres face non-league opponent North Salinas. The game will be played on Carmel's "bye" week, when they normally wouldn't play—but Coach Johnston decided to schedule the game as a tune up for a tough league game against Palma next week. Playing North Salinas won't be a walk in the park. They are a big, hard-hitting team, and will give the Padres a taste of what to expect from some of the tougher teams they will face later in league play. Hopefully, Carmel running back Jeff Saunders will be back from an ankle injury to spark the offense.

Frosh-Soph Football

The JVs dropped a tough decision last week to Gonzales 18-8. Padre linebacker Brent Carlson, playing with an injured hand, intercepted a Gonzales pitch and ran it back 75 yards for a touchdown. Ryan Sanchez added a pass to Bret Eyerman for a two-point conversion. The defense, which spent a lot of time on the field, played fairly well, but mental errors led to the Spartan's eventual scores. Bart Rowley, Brent Carlson, and Matt Crammer turned in good games on both sides of the ball.

Girls' Tennis

Carmel's tennis team continues to post an even record as they moved to 3-3 in league and 4-4 overall. They dropped a match to Santa Catalina last Thursday, but had beaten York two days earlier.

Getting away from Carmel

IT'S TOUGH getting away from Carmel. We've known that all our lives, and for the most part we bask in the notoriety of our hometown.

We loved it when the Manhattan cabby knew our town because Clint was its mayor, or when friends ran into hometown friends on an European train, or when the golfing attorney out of Bangkok bought us drinks in a toast to Pebble Beach last fall in Hong Kong.

So, we weren't entirely surprised when we arrived at Tahoe's Resort at Squaw Creek a couple of weekends ago and triggered a series of local encounters. It was the magnitude of it all that really illustrated that you can't get away from Carmel.

Squaw Creek, two years old and boasting a Robert Trent Jones Jr. 18-hole course, has been an instant success — by all appearances. Keenly calculated to cater to small groups and conference attendees with families, Squaw Creek is the modern epitome of the resort which has everything in recreation.

In addition to individual or corporate golf , there is roller blading , horseback riding, hiking, biking, swimming, volleyball, a fitness center, sports bar and — in the winter — skiing. Everything for the person who insists on staying in a self-imposed healthy frenzy.

Carmel-connected

That's probably why we ran into so many Carmel-connected experiences. Everybody is going to Squaw Creek.

We hadn't stepped from the car when young Joe Grammatico, who's father is at Spanish Bay, stepped up to welcome us. In our room the in-house television channel announced that the Monterey-Carmel Dental Group was on property for a retreat, at the starter's tent every golf bag had a Pebble Beach tag on it, at the first tee we met Mic Falkel of Pebble Beach, who was quite entertaining with his Big Bertha; and Robert Jones' design of the back nine had a distinct Spanish Bay feeling to it.

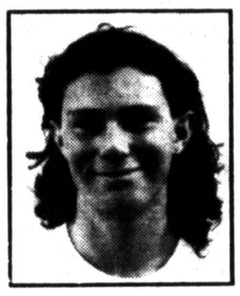
Those coincidences might have been enough, but there was more.

After a fatiguing 18 we retreated to our suite to discover Hale Irwin on television at Kapalua taking questions from spectators at the U.S. Open at Pebble over two months ago. And then there was the nationally televised pitch for buying bottles of wine with the entire layout of the Pebble Beach Golf Links on them.

As we checked out, a bellman informed us that someone on his staff had a father who owned a men's wear shop in Carmel.

So, we made a promise to ourselves. The next time we're at Squaw Creek, and we will return, we're going to tell everybody we're from Bear Creek. That's Bear Creek, Washington; not those other Bear Creeks.

But don't count on it.



Positively Padre

The Carmel Youth Center... check it out

TEENS NEED somewhere to go after school where they can have fun. For our community, the Carmel Youth Center is that place.

The Carmel Youth Center, which was established back in the 50s, is a non-profit organization that provides a gymnasium, weight room with low monthly dues, a game room, an inexpensive snack bar, and a conference room for Carmel High and Carmel Middle school students.

"It's here for kids to use for anything," said Director Pat Lenz about the youth center. "I want them to know that it is their place."

From 3 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, the Carmel Youth Center belongs to the kids. However, "until recently, it hasn't been utilized to its full potential," said Lenz, who did volunteer work at the youth center for three years until obtaining the position of director last January. Now the attendance of the CYC is up to between 40-50 kids a day, when in the past, 10 was considered a lot.

"A nice place to hang out"

"Its a nice place to hang out at. Kids can come here and stay out of trouble," said Carmel Middle School eighth-grader Nachi Cardenas, who has been going to the CYC for a year and a half. "I like the weight room because there's good machines and Coach (Covington) knows exactly what we should do."

Having no connection with the city of Carmel, the youth center gets its funding in several different ways. One is through grants. For example, the Harden Organization of Salinas provided the CYC with a grant that was used to remodel the gymnasium. The youth center has also raised money through concession stands at the AT&T golf tournament. Plus, last year Clint Eastwood, the former mayor of Carmel, donated a sum of $25,000 to the CYC.

The CYC weight room has been open for the past five years. With all its equipment being donated by Eastwood and famous body builder Arnold Schwarzenegger, "It's the only weight room around just for high school kids," said Lenz.

The weight room supervisor, Coach Don Covington, has been nationally certified in strength and conditioning. "He is probably one of the highest qualified trainers on the whole peninsula," claims Lenz.

Speaking from personal experience, the Carmel Youth Center is a great place. It's affordable, its convenient, and it's a fun way to pass the time.

The Carmel Youth Center is located on Fourth and Torres in downtown Carmel. Donations to this positive organization are accepted and appreciated.

INSURANCE AGENT AWARDED CFP DESIGNATION

Monterey Insurance Agencies (MIA) has announced that W. Scott Bray is now authorized to use the designations "CFP" and "Certified Financial Planner," awarded by the International Board of Standards and Practices for Certified Financial Planners, Inc. (IBCFP). These marks identify those individuals who have met the experience requirements and ethical standards of the IBCFP, and have passed certification examinations in financial planning, risk management, investments, tax planning, employee and retirement benefits and estate planning.

W. SCOTT BRAY

Bray, affiliated with MIA since 1990, presently manages the agency's life insurance, long-term nursing home and home health care departments. A peninsula resident since 1963, he now makes his home in Carmel.

CHAMBER HONORS TRACY FRIDAY

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Visitors & Convention Bureau has named Tracy Friday as its Member of the Month for October.

As a committee volunteer for the 1992 Southwestern Round-up and Auction, Friday was recognized by the board of directors for her hard work and talents on behalf of the Chamber/VCB. In addition to her work with the Southwestern Round-up and Auction, she has lent her ingenuity to help produce successful Chamber/VCB mixers at the Doubletree Hotel at Fisherman's Wharf where she serves as director of catering. Friday's work is characteristic of her beliefs — finding creative solutions to the "undoable." Originally from Kansas, Friday began working for Doubletree Hotels seven years ago. She has served as director of catering for the Doubletree Hotel at Fisherman's Wharf for two years.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL RATES HIGHLY

The nation's largest accrediting body has given Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula its highest rating.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations has notified Community Hospital that it has received accreditation with commendation.

Only 5 percent of the 5,400 hospitals and 3,600 other health care programs surveyed by the joint commission last received accreditation with commendation.

"We're extremely pleased to have received this designation," said Community Hospital President Jay Hudson. "It's an indicator of high-quality services — not the only one, certainly, but an excellent benchmark.

"Peninsula residents can feel confident that they are getting the best care possible," Hudson said.

Accreditation is not the end of the process, but part of the hospital's ongoing efforts to improve quality, Hudson said.

Speakers on Alzheimer's available

November is Alzheimer's Disease Month and several of the board members of the Monterey County Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association are offering their professional expertise and experience to organizations that want to learn more about the disease.

Alzheimer's disease affects 4,400,000 victims nationwide, and more than 4,000 in Monterey County. For each victim, at least one other person is directly affected by the stresses involved in caregiving. The time, energy and emotional involvement necessary to care effectively for an Alzheimer victims grows as the disease progresses and the victims become unable to do anything for themselves.

For more information or a request for a speaker call in Monterey at 647-9890 or Salinas at 757-0531.

Harold J. Amland

Harold John Amland, a retired teacher and former resident of Carmel, died Sept. 21 at Thousand Oaks Health Care in Thousand Oaks. He was 89.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., on Nov. 2, 1902, Mr. Amland earned a bachelor's degree from Luther College in Iowa and a master's degree from the University of Iowa.

He was a teacher, administrator and assistant superintendent of the St. Paul public school district before retiring. He later worked as divisional manager for the state of South Dakota for Investor's Diversified Services.

Mr. Amland was a member of the Board of Regents of Augustana College in South Dakota and a fellow of California Lutheran University in Thousand Oaks. He was a member of Kiwanis and served several terms as president of the American-Scandinavian Foundation in Carmel. He was also a member of the Chapel of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

He lived in Carmel from 1971 until moving to Thousand Oaks about 31/2 years ago.

Survivors include two sons, Harold of Racine, Wis., and David of Carmel; a daughter, Barbara Olson of Thousand Oaks; seven grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

A memorial service was held at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Thousand Oaks. The Pierce Brothers Griffin Mortuary in Thousand Oaks was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

Kathleen Romm

Kathleen Romm Hogan, of Carmel Valley, a businesswoman and community leader, died Sept. 21 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Mrs. Hogan was born July 8, 1920, in Toronto, Ontario, Canada. She moved with her family to Oakland as a child, graduating from Holy Names High School and attending Holy Names College. She later graduated from Merritt Business School.

Following her graduation, she worked until her marriage as an executive secretary to the president of Roos Brothers in San Francisco. While stationed at the Naval Line School in Monterey, her first husband, Cmdr. George H. Frates Jr., a fighter pilot, was killed in the line of duty.

After her second marriage, to George Romm, the couple founded Allied Vending Service, which became the largest vending company in Monterey. Also, the company was the first in the nation to have a completely automated high school cafeteria at Carmel High. The Romms were divorced in 1972. She later ran the business with her son until it was sold to ACE Music in 1976.

In 1963, she and Carmel restaurateur Bud Allen started "Disco Tete-a-Tete" at the Mark Thomas Inn. Mrs. Hogan entered the real estate business and became a member of the Million Dollar Club her first year with Arndt and Associates. In 1980, she became a broker and started her own firm.

In 1986, she married Daniel Hogan, founder, president and chairman of the board of Standex International. Mr. Hogan died in November. Active in civic affairs, Mrs. Hogan was a contributor to several charities, including the Salvation Army, A Helping Hand, Colby-Sawyer College, Holy Names Society and the Carmelite Sisters. She was a past member of the Jesters, a philanthropic organization that supports the Monterey Museum of Art. She also starred in the B-Sharp Follies, which benefited the Monterey County Symphony. She was also a member of the Wine and Food Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

She is survived by a son, George Frates III of Carmel; three daughters, Michele Adrian of Carmel, Arleen Des Jardin of Scotts Valley and Patricia Mardon of Castroville; a sister, Margorie McGarr of Sonoma; six grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

A memorial service was held at Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula in Carmel Valley. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of cremation arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to any of the above-mentioned charities.

Elizabeth Duncan

Elizabeth Duncan, of Carmel, a homemaker, died at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula after a fall at home. She was 89.

Mrs. Duncan was born in Texas on Aug. 23, 1903, and moved to Carmel 13 years ago.

She is survived by a son, Bruce of Canada, and a stepdaughter, Kaye Natale of Denver.

No services were held. Private burial will take place at Skylawn Memorial Park, San Mateo. The Mission Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
MP 12264

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of CHARLES DE BRETTEVILLE, a/k/a/ CHARLES de BRETTEVILLE

A PETITION has been filed by CHARLES LOCKE DE BRETTEVILLE and PETER DE BRETTEVILLE in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

THE PETITION requests that CHARLES LOCKE DE BRETTEVILLE and PETER DE BRETTEVILLE by appointed as personal representative to administrator the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on November 13, 1992 9:30 a.m. in Dept. A located at 1200 Aquajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for the petitioner GARY S. VANDEWEGHE, ESQ. 152 North Third Street, S. 400, San Jose, Ca. 95115.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY

On Monday, October 12, 1992, at 10:00 a.m., on the steps by the carriage area in front of 2049 Century Park East, Los Angeles, California, Secured Parties Stuart Hackel and Teardrop Partners, a California general partnership, will conduct a public sale, pursuant to S 9504 of the California Commercial Code, of the collateral described below (the "Collateral").

The Collateral consists of a Promissory Note dated December 6, 1983, in the original principal sum of $771,505.53, executed by Western Scenic Properties, Inc., a California corporation ("Western Scenic"), and Classic Properties, a California general partnership, in favor of Richard C. Kurtz or order (the "Note"), which Note is secured by a Deed of Trust dated December 6, 1983, recorded in the Official Records of the Office of the County Recorder of Monterey in Salinas, California, as Instrument No. G 59292, Reel 1695, Page 535 (the "Deed of Trust"). The Note was endorsed and delivered to Secured Parties and the Deed of the Trust was assigned to Secured Parties on December 15, 1986, pursuant to a Security Agreement dated December 15, 1986, a Modification Agreement dated November 3, 1987, and an assignment of Deed of Trust recorded on January 9, 1987, as Instrument No. 01763, Reel 2049, Pages 488 and 489 in the Office of the County Recorder of Monterey, in Salinas, California.

The Note bears interest at the rate of 12% per annum and was payable in monthly installments of $7,935.87 from January 1, 1984, through January , 1991, at which time a balloon payment of all unpaid principal and interest became due and payable. Secured parties have received no payments pursuant to the Note since at least July of 1989.

The real property encumbered by the Deed of Trust (the "Real Property") is owned by Western Scenic, and is commonly known as "Greyrock," located on Highway 1, in Big Sur, California APN 420-021-23. It consists of 52 acres, more or less, more fully described as follows:

The Northeast 1/4 of the Northwest 1/4 of section 30, township 20 south, range 3 east, M.D.M., in the county of Monterey, state of California, and that portion of lot 1 of said section 30 bounded by a line which begins at the northeast corner of said lot 1 and runs thence westerly along the northerly boundary line of said section 30, approximately 170 feet to the centerline of the main stream flowing through redwood canyon; thence southwesterly along the centerline of said main stream to the shoreline of the Pacific Ocean; thence southeasterly along the shore line of the Pacific Ocean to the southerly boundary line of lot 1; thence easterly along the southerly boundary line to the easterly boundary line of said lot 1; thence northerly along the easterly boundary line of said lot 1, to the northerly boundary line of said section 30 and the point of beginning and all of lots 2, 3 and 4 of section 30, T. 20S, R. 3E., M.D.M., according to the official plat thereof.

Except therefrom all that part of the NE 1/4 of the NW 1/4 of section 30, T. 20 S., R. 3 E., M.D.B. & M. lying north of the main coast trail between posts and Slates Hot Springs, as conveyed by Harriette B. Harker and J. Henry P. Atkinds to Mary Anne Hadden by deed dated September 3, 1919 and recorded November 6, 1920 in volume 177 of deeds, Monterey County Records, page 145.

Also except there from any portion thereof lying within the boundaries of the state highway, as the same existed on July 26, 1935.

The sale of the Note will be "as is" and "where is," and without representations or warranties of any kind, including, but not limited to, any representation or warranty as to the enforceability of the Note and Deed of Trust, or the physical condition or value of the Real Property. At least one junior lienholder on the Real Property is currently in bankruptcy.

For further information concerning the sale or to obtain a copy of the title insurance policy insuring the Assignment of the Deed of Trust, please contact Carole L. Wooten, Cox, Castle & Nicholson, 2049 Century Park East, Suite 2800, Los Angeles, CA 90067, tel: (310) 284-2227, fax: (310) 277-7889.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Communicate your love

I HAVE a friend whose family came to California after World War I. They were from the French Pyrenees near Lourdes. My friend told me that both her mother and father yelled at her in their French patois most of the time. When they did not yell, they shouted, and when they did not shout they nagged.

She said that she does not remember that they ever complimented her nor did they ever tell her that they loved her. She resolved that she would never nag or yell or shout. She tells her husband and her children that she loves them even when she feels they need to be corrected of admonished. She compliments them for she feels that they must realize that she cares.

Everyone is starved for love. We need to be reassured. It is not enough to be provided for, to be given gifts. We need to be listened to, to know that others are interested in us not because of obligation but because we are loved.

Ma Bell tells us to reach out and touch someone. We can do just that by phone, by a telegram, by letter, by a word, a smile or a hug. We must let our spouse, our family, our friends know how important they are to us. They will never know unless we tell them.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"The human body and mind can be astonishingly healthy and functional at middle age," says Dr. T. Franklin Williams, director of the National Institute on Aging (NIA). He pointed to two sports stars in their 40s as examples of maintaining skills and durability longer than people of previous generations: Fans expected boxer George Forman, 42, to go down early when he stepped into the ring against Evander Childs, 28. But Forman lasted through the final round. And at 44, Nolan Ryan pitched a no-hitter for the Texas Rangers.

In her 40 years on radio and television, Betty White won five Emmys — the latest for her role in "Golden Girls." At 69, she credited her career success in part to "being in the right place at the right time." And she explained why performing on TV is different from the stage and movies: "You're never talking to more than three or four people in the room. If there are more people in the room, they're talking to each other."

Jeffers Festival looming

By JOHN DETRO

THE NAME Robinson Jeffers still makes magic in the minds and very bones of all who care about narrative verse drawn from the crags, sea-smash and hawk cries which we coast dwellers know so well.

This weekend — Friday through Sunday, Oct. 9-11 — Carmel's Tor House Foundation will honor that fact by hosting its annual Jeffers Festival.

Specific elements were described by Festival Program Chairperson John Hicks and Foundation President Hadley Osborn along with media contact Lequita Vance-Watkins.

Garth will speak

Highlights include a talk by Garth Jeffers, the late poet's son, and a tribute to Dame Judith Anderson. The great actress had a special love for Jeffers; he heart-crafted lines for her in specific.

Activities begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9, with a two-hour wine and cheese book signing reception for festival authors in the Barnyard Community Room. Hicks said Garth Jeffers, photographer Morley Baer, Greek actress Lili Bita and Jeffers scholars James Karman and Robert Zaller will attend. The public is invited free of charge.

On Saturday, Oct. 10, the George White Memorial Seminars will occur in Carpenter Hall of Sunset Center.

From 10 a.m.-noon, Garth Jeffers and Baer will talk about The Robinson and Una Jeffers We Knew. The $10 admission charge will be payable at the door.

And from 2-4 p.m. comes the tribute to Dame Judith. There will be talks by Karman and Zaller plus a reading from Lili Bita — Greek Heroines in the Poetry of Robinson Jeffers. Same admission charge.

Banquet time

The Evening Gala and Jeffers Banquet will be held in the Posiedon Room of Carmel's La Playa Hotel on Saturday night. The social hour starts at 6:30 followed by dinner an hour later.

After the meal, Marcia Gambrel Hovick of Children's Experimental Theater will read selections from Jeffers in honor of Dame Judith. Reservations are required ($60 apiece); call the foundation at 625-1813 to make your arrangements.

Capping the fest on Sunday morning, Oct. 11, will be the Jeffers Poetry Walk led by peninsula poets John Dotson and Taelen Thomas. Participants will meet at

JAZZ: Monterey = promises kept

(Editor's note: An internationally respected jazz critic, the writer also plays solid piano, writes poetry and teaches at Monterey Peninsula College. This is the second of two parts.)

LATE SATURDAY afternoon, the blues show (by way of a resolute Buddy Guy, plus Katie Webster shouting that she didn't want her man comin' home talkin' 'bout "all that undercover work he had to do!") topped off the joyous work that it was born to do. That evening, on the Garden Stage, Peter Apfelbaum and the Hieroglyphics Ensemble gave the capacity crowd a taste of the new.

I was anxious to hear the Ensemble's "multi-culturalism that grooves," yet will confess that—in spite of two drummers, two electric basses, a violinist and bassoon; in spite of "lyrics" by one of my favorite poets (Dylan Thomas' "The hand that signed the paper felled the city"); orchestral opulence and a rich rhythmic bouillabaisse—the heavy ostinato, extended vamps and messages buried in prodigious volume made the Hieroglyphics Ensemble sound a bit like Kenton performing the Apocalypse to me—although I'm grateful that "experimental" groups like Apfelbaum's, and the excellent New World Trio, are participating in the festival (I'm one of those heretics who hopes to live long enough to see such genuine innovators as Anthony Braxton, Butch Morris, Anthony Davis or the ROVA Saxophone Quartet on a Monterey stage).

Saturday night in Pattee Arena commenced with the Billy Childs Group, another appropriate selection not only by way of the pianist's youth but—following a funky percussive opener, Mt. Olympus (Childs running glisses up and down the keyboard)—formal eloquence and a clean lyrical touch that complemented the fine manic drive of Friday's Hargrove Quintet.

Saturday night provided the proverbial embarrassment of riches: Kitty Margolis pleasing the Night Club crowd with her spunk, vocal range and stunning accents ("Love walked right in and scared the sh, sh, shadows away!"), accompanied by the always interesting and tasteful Dick Hindman on piano. I should have known better than to hop from Margolis to Betty Carter, exchanging a fine singer for a superb and astonishing one, but I got my money's worth.

Carter actually subdued, silenced, the all too frequently rude Pattee Arena crowd—and she did so by way of ballads! Even her breathing is music, and a hushed But Beautiful (exquisite) was followed by a jaggedly sweet and sarcastic I Should Care ("and I do"), showing her range, control and fine sense of dynamics: her intonation mannered, even eccentric, but always engaging.

Ed on the scene

I slipped out of Pattee for Ed Kelly, a fine pianist working in the tasteful but powerful Tommy Flanagan tradition: soft and subtle on In Your Own Sweet Way, then turning to strong blues.

I returned to the arena to catch a loosely organized but enjoyable Kenny Burrell set, four top professionals: the nearly punkishly playful Jimmy Smith, large toned and serious Stanley Turrentine, and the rich, deep voice of drummer Grady Tate on My Funny Valentine.

Symphony picks 'Discover America' as its theme

By NATHALIE PLOTKIN

THE MONTEREY County Symphony and Maestro Clark Suttle, its music director, will launch their 1992-1993 season with a set of three concerts based on the theme of Discover America.

The performances of October 11 (3 p.m. in Sunset Auditorium in Carmel), October 12 (8 p.m. again in Carmel) and October 13 (8 p.m. in Sherwood Hall in Salinas) will include three works which have some musical connection, albeit in one case rather tenuous, with the history of our country.

Appropriately enough, the lead-off work is by a contemporary American composer. Robert Beaser's massively orchestrated Double Chorus was commissioned by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra to commemorate its 100th anniversary and Beaser's synthesis of European tradition and American vernacular should be very interesting.

Propulsion

The 48-year-old composer's educational and musical background and credentials have propelled him into great prominence on the East Coast musical scene.

Going then to a work by Tchaikovsky who visited the United States 101 years ago in 1891 to help open up the newly built Carnegie Hall conducting a performance of his 1812 Overture, shows creative logic.

Certainly his Violin Concerto in D Major, though composed some 13 years earlier, deserves a place on any program for any reason. Stephanie Chase, a youthful American violin virtuoso who has been on stage at Sunset Auditorium several times in recent years and was highly acclaimed, will be the soloist with the orchestra.

My previous musical encounters with this accomplished performer are among my happier memories of our concert scene.

Real connection

To conclude the program, Maestro Suttle chose a composition whose connection with the idea of discovering America is impeccable, appropriate and really unavoidable, namely Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 (From the New World). Written 100 years ago and premiered by the New York Philharmonic in 1893, it was an immediate and unequivocal success.

Once so over-programmed as to become wearisome, the symphony became rather neglected. But it is truly a stalwart, solidly based and still worthy and welcome musical friend. Paired with the Tchaikovsky concerto, an ambiance is created where one can expect a warmly familiar atmosphere which can be enjoyed without resorting to soul searching or analysis.

In considering future programs, the overall impression is of a season of 19th and early 20th century romanticism, full of unforgettable old acquaintances who are nonetheless worthy of a hearing despite the fatct we know them so well.

Russians

The program for the November concerts on the 15, 16 and 17, is an all-Russian one, featuring pianist Tatiana Nikolayeva in the Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2 in C Minor (1901). Stravinsky's Firebird Suite was an early work composed in 1910.

Though these two compositions are 20th century in date, they unmistakably belong to the romantic tradition, while Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 3 in D Major, which completes the program, is a delightfully fresh and unhackneyed choice. It is a symphony that only lately has begun to be appreciated on its own merits.

January's musical offerings are an interesting juxtaposition of forces. The Mozart Symphony in G Minor No. 40 is yet another all- time musical favorite and, for all its classical grace, has a warmth and sensitivity that is well over the romantic border. The Brahms German Requiem with the Symphony Chorus is benign and lovely in its own version of reflections of serenity and healing solace and is an uplifting choral masterpiece.

A more wide-ranging group of works is offered for February 7, 8 and 9, though still continuing in the romantic vein.

Nicolai's bubbling Merry Wives of Windsor Overture, the American composer George Chadwick's Symphonic Sketches and the Brahms Piano Concerto No. 2 with Dmitri Ratser as soloist, should afford a well- designed, neatly-varied and very enjoyable musical grouping.

Beethoven reigns supreme on March 14, 15 and 16 in a program which includes pianist John O'Conor whose playing of Mozart was highly praised when he

JAZZ: Monterey fest keeps promises to its followers

The group provided a sassy Sugar; Burrell showing his considerable solo skills on Flamingo. Again (Is it my imagination? Or did I just have better seats than I've ever had before?), the crowd was listening: respectful and attentive—especially when the accomplished Lincoln Center Jazz Orchestra, which contains such anonymous sidemen as Wynton Marsalis, Lew Soloff, Britt Woodman and Sir Roland Hanna, came on: offering everything Ellington from Rockin' in Rhythm to Daybreak Express and Braggin' in Brass, all deftly executed—tasteful, reverential and original plunger solos, lush section work.

I enjoyed hearing (because I lost my original 10" recording with Al Hibbler) Milt Grayson sing I Like the Sunrise, a moving piece from Ellington's Liberian Suite.

Teen players

On Sunday, a nearly full house greeted the California High School All-Star Jazz Band when, under the solid tutelage of Bill Berry, they launched into Take the A-Train, followed by an up-tempo Bill Holman arrangement of After You've Gone.

Trumpeter Berry, along with tenorman Damon Bramble, contributed fine solos on Mutton Leg. Jon Faddis ("It's good to be black, Jimmy," he said when introduced as an alumnus) took over directional chores for a tribute to Dizzy Gillespie that included Emanon, Tadd Dameron's prime Good Bait, and a grossly unfair but charming "duel" between Faddis and Monterey High School junior Tanya Darby.

I had watched Faddis rehearsing this student big band on Saturday, going over and over and over (to his dissatisfaction) a five note trumpet section riff—short, long, short, long, then a squeeze like released air from a bicycle tire—not included (wisely, I guess) in the Sunday afternoon program.

Jazz violin

Late that afternoon, the New World Trio (already mentioned)—India Cooke's violin flare, Kash Killian's cello discretion and drummer Eddie Marshall's fireworks—providing gypsy exuberance, frenzied and refined, on Bemsha Swing; chamber music Bartok exactitude and exotic rhythmic interlacing on Cooke's original 62383. Later that night, at the Night Club, highly motile drummer Marshall would propel his own solid group of young lions—Peck Almond on trumpet and Kenny Gross on reeds—through a wild and pleasing hard bop open blowing romp.

The festival provided solid offerings by local groups: the John Cortes Quintet, Ace Hill's Trio (with "young lion" Brian McConnell on bass, red sticked Bill Jackson on drums) coming "downstairs" to the blues with a fine After Hours, plus Jake Stock's popular Abalone Stompers (who opened the first MJF in 1958), yet I had to settle for Weber Drummond and the 100 percent man Kenny Stahl (he always comes to play!) from afar, for the Night Club was packed to overflowing.

Bullies

Security guards turned bullies with the long waiting line, telling us that, should we be fortunate enough to make it inside but leave for so much as a phone call, we would have to go "all the way back to the end of the line again."

Branford Marsalis (whose influences—from Getz to Jan Garber to Sonny Rollins—can be fairly transparent) concluded the Sunday afternoon fare: fellow jazz journalist Scott Yanow commenting, "He sounds like himself a little bit today."

On Sunday night I was determined to resist the tsunami of sentiment (and it was one) that attended that string of stalwarts which did comprise a fitting, and moving, homage to the man who (along with Ralph Gleason) first conceived, then sustained this festival for so many years: Jimmy Lyons, a large paper-mache head of whom led a "Carnival" percussion parade throughout Pattee Arena, a just about naked and the most perfect female Brazilian body I have ever seen (not that I'm an expert on such matters) followed by one that had to be runner-up.

Playful

Gerry Mulligan showed subtle, playful rapport, fine natural counterpoint, with pianist Bill Mayes on A Line for Lyons; Brubeck's funky prancing intro on A-Train a surprise, along with his Basie spareness converted to solid James P. Johnson stride (Bill Smith's clarinet sounding a bit thin, I'm afraid, to those of us reared on Paul Desmond); the MJQ receiving a standing ovation for their elegant up-tempo True Blues.

I was delighted to see Louie Bellson in action with the All-Stars. I have nostalgia of my own, having seen him, in his impressive two bass drum debut with Duke Ellington, in 1951; and I also had a beer with Chet Baker and Gerry Mulligan at Basin Street in New York a few years later!).

Bruce Forman granted his customarily superb guitar work, Faddis his high range fire; and George Bohanon and Slide Hampton provided a fitting For All We Know for Jimmy Lyons.

Congratulations

And that was it. Both Jimmy and Tim Jackson should be congratulated on a splendid array of talent: the full fare, rich menu (Saturday night a gem)—a handsome balance offering variety and surprise: what fine imaginative jazz programming is all about. And Tim Jackson has already made good on, I would say, the trust and promise initially granted him.

I had run into board member/drummer Bill Jackson before the music got underway and, asked about this year's festival, he replied, "It's going to be a monster." And in the best sense, it was.

Monterey Pop CD set coming

RHINO RECORDS says a four-CD set drawn from tapes of the 1967 Monterey Pop Festival will be released Nov. 13.

In putting out this word, package producer Stephen Peeples said from Santa Monica that most of the collection's music "never has been released commercially."

That Monterey Fairgrounds event — with Janis Joplin, Jimi Hendrix, The Byrds, Jefferson Airplane, Lou Rawls, Canned Heat, Otis Redding, Country Joe and the Fish, Mamas and the Papas, others — won recognition as the first full-scale rock fest.

Peeples said the project began in 1989 when he was asked to take four and a half hours of music from 10 hours of taped performances. The final product, he added, will include a 96-page booklet with photos and comments from surviving participants.

Profits will be given to various charities chosen at a later date, Rhino spokespersons said.

Meanwhile, Esalen Institute will celebrate its 30th anniversary on Saturday, Oct. 10, with an all-star concert which county supervisors approved after county planners ruled against the necessary permit.

The party's already sold out (at $75 per person). Appearing will be Joan Baez, Bonnie Raitt, Jackson Browne, Mimi Farina, jazz saxist Charles Lloyd, Kenny Loggins, Jimmy Messina, Timbuk 3.

Organizers warned those without tickets not to come. Unauthorized vehicles may well be towed away, they said.

On Sunday, Oct. 11, comedienne Judy Tenuta will do two shows at Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row — 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Cover charge of $16.

Advance ducats may be obtained via Ticketmaster or the venue itself (649-4241).

Sunset Film Fest opens new season

THE SECOND Tuesday Film Fest at Carmel's Sunset Center opens the 1992-93 season at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, with the 1962 black and white movie Cape Fear.

The suspense item was directed by J. Lee Thompson and stars Gregory Peck, Robert Mitchum, Polly Bergen and Telly Savalas. An ex-convict seeks revenge against a lawyer (Robert De Niro played the psychopath in a recent remake).

Tickets ($3 apiece) will be available beginning 7 p.m. Doors will open half an hour later.

Subscription tickets cost $20 for the nine-film series. If you wish more information, call 624-3996.

Symphony...

last appeared in Carmel.

He will be heard in the Piano Concerto No. 3 in C Minor. The orchestra will play the Overture to Egmont and the Symphony No. 7 in A Major. There's nothing to complain about here for us Ludwig lovers.

Some innovation

The final concerts on May 16, 17 and 18 are comparatively innovative, beginning with the contemporary American composer Charles Wuorinen's Machault mon Chou, Mozart's delightful Violin Concerto No. 3 in G Major, spotlighting concertmaster Phillip Levy, and concluding with Anton Bruckner's Symphony No. 4 in E Flat Minor, subtitled the Romantic.

It is interesting that this last selection of the season sums up its thrust so aptly.

Here's a set of programs whose contents are easily characterized as attractive and audience-pleasing. Almost every piece is surely solidly familiar to our local concert-goers.

Tried, true

Of the 17 selections to be performed over the course of the season, only two are contemporary and therefore decidedly new to practically all of us; the balance comes from the tried-and-true, hundred best-loved repertoire.

The reason for the existence of that repertoire is clearly evident. Audiences enjoy it and the Monterey County Symphony can expect great and well-deserved ticket sales and a successful season.

Acoustic jazz trio to offer Portofino sets

AN ACOUSTIC jazz trio will play sets on Thursday evening, Oct. 8, at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Cafe in Pacific Grove.

The popular unit is made up of bassist Bryan McConnell, tenor saxist Les Rose and John Goldsmith at the drums.

The first tune will kick off at 8 p.m. Door charge: $5 per.

COOKING TIPS FROM THE TOP

In today's world we wear many hats...

Master Chef
Robert Williamson wears just one.

We wouldn't have it any other way. When Master Chef Williamson donns his chef's hat, we know that European cuisine will soon be presented by the first and foremost of culinary experts. Here Master Chef Williamson shares one of his many secrets that makes The Covey — simply the best!

"To prevent Creme Anglaise from curdling add a little cold milk to the hot custard when it is sufficiently cooked, then strain into a cool bowl."

Hats off to you, Master Chef Williamson! And here's another tip (of the hat, if you will). Do you have a taste for the good life? So do we! Join us at The Covey just 3.4 miles from Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road • Cocktails from 5 pm - dinner every evening from 6:30 pm • jackets and reservations requested (408) 624-1581

OUT ON THE TOWN

CARMEL MUSIC CO.

Come meet Dexter Johnson...luthier. That's the time-honored job title worn by makers of stringed instruments. Dexter offers hand-crafted guitars and mandolins along with new and used Martins, Gibsons, Santa Cruz models, Taylors. All band instruments, banjos, music needs. You'll never experience sales pressure at this deeply interesting shop on Dolores near Fifth in downtown Carmel. 624-8078. Workshops and master classes announced through this newspaper.

TOOTS LAGOON

Fabulous place for fabulous folks. Bill Oates, Ed Johnson...these Toots execs are happy campers whose spirit permeates. Romantic dinners? Family outings? Groups? Here's the spot. Ribs, seafood, pasta, great steaks, salads, appetizers, desserts. Open for lunch and dinner seven days per week. Full bar, lots of evening activity, a different chef's special every night. Dolores and Seventh, Carmel. 625-1915.

HELLAM'S TOBACCO SHOP

The Hellam family has been in this same business since 1892. And what a fascinating place. Tobacco products and pipes from all over the world. Rare gift items, joke gifts and tricks, adult party items. Lee Hellam and his staff take plenty of time with customers while consulting on fine tobaccos and, for another example, pipe care and supplies. Stop by and browse...it's a fun-packed stop on anyone's shopping trip. 423 Alvarado in downtown Monterey.

(Note: This peninsula corrects itself. Boomers and users don't last long. We met with advertisers who keep honesty and enjoyment of what they do as primary values.)

GADSBY'S MUSIC COMPANY

In Salinas for 57 years, Gadsby's proudly offers full-line service from the Pacific Grove store: grand pianos to guitar picks plus organ and guitar lessons. Gadsby's is this area's exclusive dealer for Peavey products (amplifiers, guitars, keyboards) and Yamaha acoustic pianos, including the exciting Disklavier modern player piano. Complete starter packages available, such as guitar, amp, cable, pick. Stop by and say hello to a friendly expert -- Gadsby's manager Bob Gosnell. 165 Fountain Ave. 372-5585.

British beers - 10 draft, two dozen bottled. Weekly dart tourneys, bar games, special events. Monday: British Comedy Night with Monty Python on the telly. Pete and Rosemary Blackwell encourage tall tales around the fireplace and player piano too. Comfy, reasonably priced. 479 Alvarado Street.

DOC RICKETTS' LAB

Monterey County's only major showcase featuring famous rock, jazz, blues, and country acts. Wynton Marsalis, Kris Kristofferson, Chris Issak, and John Mayall have performed at Doc's. Weekends ther's never a cover charge when you dance to quality rock bands. An intimate club with Monterey County's only professional sound and light system. Full-service bar and a friendly staff to serve you. Located in Cannery Row at 95 Prescott. Call 649-4241 for more information.

Art roundup: CAA opens shows

CARMEL ART Association (CAA) announces exhibits from Oct. 8 through early November of work by Linford Donovan, Alicia Meheen and the late sculptor Bert Conaghan.

A reception noting the events will be held from 6-8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10. The CAA Gallery (on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth) is open to the public daily between 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Show-by-show:

• Recent paintings and drawings by Donovan will be displayed in the Center Gallery through Nov. 4. She takes inspiration from worldwide travels, listing "ethnic portrait studies" as her preferred subject matter.

Donovan's portrait commissions are numerous. She has illustrated children's books and had two of her own published by Walter Foster. Her studies include rich time with a master Japanese screenmaker in Tokyo.

• Watercolorist Meheen offers works painted during the years 1976-92. These depict scenes from California, Nevada, Iran and Guatemala. In the Beardsley Room through Nov. 3.

• Conaghan died early last month. The association presents a 25-year retrospective of his sculptures through Nov. 3.

A past president of CAA, he trained with Alex Weygers in sculpture, metalwork and blacksmithing. Locally, Conaghan pieces are on permanent display at Monterey Peninsula College and Monterey Sports Center.

Pacific Grove action

PACIFIC GROVE Art Center (PGAC) this week made known the contents of its next exhibits. A public reception will be held there from 7-9 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 16. Then works will stay up through Nov. 20.

Gill Gallery: new glass constructions (sculpture) by Kathleen Crocetti. Howard Bradford's oil paintings.

Dyke Gallery: Watercolors by David Whitlock. The rubric is Florals — Up Close or Personal.

Boyer Gallery: Anne Green Cloutier's box collages, photos and painted glass.

About survival

MONTEREY BAY Women's Caucus for Art has opened a wide-ranging exhibit — Flyways: Women and Ecology Around the Pacific — at Monterey Peninsula College Gallery. A reception for the artists and book signing will happen from 5-7 p.m. there on Friday, Oct. 9.

This show focuses on ecological survival. It includes 64 women from Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Costa Rica, Indonesia, Japan, Mexico, The Philippines and the states of Alaska, Arizona, California, Florida, Hawaii and Washington.

The Flyways Project, according to Caucus program notes, "is a collaborative project of artists living on the Pacific Rim. Artists contributed to the project by sending a piece on the theme and by inviting two other artists who in turn each invited another artist. This circle of invitation followed the paths of migrating birds. Of 150 pieces of paper that went out, 64 were returned to create the exhibition and catalogue."

Available Oct. 9, this catalogue documents the dialogue between collaborating artists with excerpts from their correspondence and black/white reproductions of the art work.

The project is funded in part by a grant from Monterey County Cultural Council.

In bronze

THE HIGHLANDS Sculpture Gallery (Dolores between Fifth and Sixth in Carmel) will feature the bronze pieces of California artist Robert Holmes from Oct. 9 through Nov. 5. He will be on hand for the public reception from 4-7 p.m. Friday.

Holmes casts the bronzes in his own foundry. Information: 624-0535.

Major show

MONTEREY PENINSULA Museum of Art opens its major fall exhibit on Saturday, Oct. 10 — a selection of 19th century chief's blankets created by Navajos living in the American Southwest.

Assembled for MPMA by Joshua Baer of Santa Fe, New Mexico, the offering will continue in the Work Gallery through Jan. 10 of next year. Numerous private lenders have made this possible.

Aldrin's vision

AN EXHIBITION of paintings by California modernist Anders Aldrin will open Friday, Oct. 9, at Carmel's William A. Karges Fine Art Gallery and run through Nov. 7.

Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served at the Friday reception between 5-9 p.m. Aldrin (1889-1970) left a remarkable collection of oils, watercolors, drawings, pastels, acrylics and color wood block prints.

Dancing at Mission Ranch

PRODUCER RICHARD Armbrust has booked another public opportunity for dancing at Clint Eastwood's Mission Ranch Barn on Thursday night (Oct. 8) from 7-10.

The band for that occasion will be Django, which specializes in music from the 1940s through '80s.

Tickets cost $8 per person or $15 for two. Call 455-

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

Greg's path

THOUGH HE lives in Las Vegas these days due to professional commitments, Greg Stegeman still thinks of Carmel Valley as his home. Greg struggled hereabouts for many years — as jazz musician and singer, radio deejay, sometimes clerk, single father raising two sons — before the big break came.

A few years back, Greg sent a demo to Bob Flanigan of The Four Freshmen. Stegeman had been following the unit since teenhood; Bob was an old friend. And Flanigan said: Someone left us, Greg. Come to work as soon as you can.

Bob, last original group member, recently suffered a heart attack and decided to retire. Latest newsbreak: Greg already has become the lead voice as well as brass player and keyboardist. Stegeman says the fresh lineup — himself, Bob Perreira, Kevin Stout, Mike Beisner — will work its "first official gig" on Oct. 11 "at a Newport Beach jazz club called El Nido. We play there twice a year and have real dedicated fans."

And: "Bob Flanigan and Autie Goodman will be on the England tour in November because of previous contract arrangements, but everything else from Oct. 11 on will be the New Four Freshmen. One other high-profile job coming up is Fat Tuesdays in Manhattan from Dec. 26 through New Year's Eve."

Soon after next year's first day, Greg continues, the new configuration will "begin work on the first Freshmen album in years. It'll be a tribute to Frank Sinatra with the Lew Anderson Big Band out of New York. All Lew's personnel are alumni of the Woody Herman, Buddy Rich, Maynard Ferguson, Louis Bellson and Gerry Mulligan organizations. Mike Beisner and I are scheduled to write the vocal arrangements."

Flanigan said he thought about breaking up the quartet. "But it means so much to so many people, I decided to keep it going. Greg's perfect for the job. When the heart attack hit, he sang my part and sounded like I sounded 35 years ago. Greg has been studying me since he was 16. He knows me better than I know myself. There won't be that much difference in the sound."

YOSHI'S RESTAURANT on the Oakland/Berkeley line has leased its jazz space to Todd Barkan, who had the old Keystone Korner in San Francisco, and similarly experienced booker Chuck LaPaglia. The two men are off and running with the new Keystone Korner — and their October lineup looks impressive.

Chicago reedman Chico Freeman will do some live recording there on Tuesday night, Oct. 13.

Charlie Haden's Quartet West (with Ernie Watts, Alan Broadbent, Lawrence Marable) comes in Oct. 14-18. Tania Maria (Oct. 22-25) will be followed by flugelhornist and conguero Jerry Gonzales with his Fort Apache Band (Oct. 30-Nov. 1).

But the date that grabs me deepest down happens on Tuesday, Oct. 20 — alto saxist Sonny Simmons in a reunion gig with longtime spouse and blazing trumpeter Barbara Donald.

Sonny was part of the New York '60s scene with John Coltrane and Eric Dolphy. Everyone who heard him agreed that the man was blessed by genius and cursed by private demons. He and Barbara worked together for many years, but eventually she went back to the Pacific Northwest. The undeniably great Sonny Simmons ended up playing on San Francisco streets.

Simmons told writers that decades as a black American jazzman had made him terribly bitter. He was sorting out some things.

Friends got him off the corner and into regular jam sessions. Someone — perhaps Sonny himself — contacted Barbara. She agreed that they could and should reconstitute the praiseworthy front line of other decades.

Sonny and Barbara. Together again. If fiery post-bop originals are your cup of tea, Simmons and Donald will turn you every way but loose. Shows at 8 and 10 p.m. Just $8 per at the door.

Not incidentally, Sonny had a strong effect on today's peninsula jazz scene. Saxist John Cortes and trumpet pro Oscar Williams (of the Cortes Quintet) first met in the 1979 Simmons band. And the local keyboardist/composer David (Dasher) Kempton grew up artistically under Sonny's demanding leadership.

"Sonny could plug into his spiritual genius place at will," Cortes said. "He checked me out for a few months and then played for me the real Sonny Simmons. The man was incredible. I hope he's all right."

Kempton told this column many months ago: "Sonny made all of us play like never before. And he was the one who gave out nicknames. Somehow, the nicknames from Sonny always stuck."

AVEC FEELING: Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society slates a Music and Dancin' Fall Social at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11, at the Moose Lodge on Canyon Del Rey. Members $3; non-members $5. "Ladies are invited to bring their umbrellas and join our Dancing Jubilators; musicians are welcome to sit in with the house band."

• Monterey Plaza Hotel closes out its Sunday Brunch Jazz Series from noon-4 Oct. 11 with the Roger Eddy Trio. Call 646-1700 for meal reservations.

• Mermaid Bistro on Cannery Row features live jazz "every Friday, Saturday and Sunday night from 6-10." Call 372-2141 for personnel information and reservations.

• The band Django will play for the Oct. 15 dance at Mission Ranch Barn, says producer Richard Armbrust. That's Dino Vera (drums and vocals), Judy Blair (keyboards and vocals), Charlie De Weiss (guitar) and saxist Todd Clickard. Music starts at 7 p.m. Just $8 apiece or $15 per couple.

• Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz brings in percussionist Airto with his Fourth World Band on Monday night, Oct. 12. Featured will be the rather amazing vocalist Flora Purim. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $14 advance (Ticketmaster) or $16 at the door.

Britannica LEARNING CENTER
formerly The Reading Game

Blaming only makes the pain go deeper. A youngster's lackluster school performance may stem from a social bind (peer pressure) or lack of confidence that fulfills its own sad prophecy. Whatever the cause, Britannica Learning Center evaluates the struggle and replies via compassionate, time-tested programs in both reading and math. On average, a 48-hour instructional plan means a full year's academic growth.

Britannica Center sets realistic goals that then are practiced a few hours per week. The atmosphere, methods and special incentives can turn previously hated studies into attractive times. (The same approach works for advancement-seeking adults too!)

One call can change lives: 372-2090. Convenient Monterey location: 200 Camino Aquajito...Suite 201. Keeping the promise since 1970.

CARMEL BOOK EMPORIUM

This fine bookshop emphasizes high quality and 60 sections (ultimately 100) and a big stone fireplace round which folks may browse contentedly. Management promises computerized ordering that assures "the best possible turnaround time."

Special attention is given to mysteries, creative writing, the lively arts - and of course the tops in contemporary fiction. Videos include such special contexts as Oscar-winning Best Pictures over the past 20 years. And PBS productions. And music tapes and CDs (local players too). Before long, Carmel Book Emporium will add a cafe - perfect meeting spot.

On Lobos Lane in The Crossroads (a few steps from Safeway). Open 10-6 Sunday/Thursday; 10-8 Friday/Saturday. 626-BOOK.

MONTEREY BAY COFFEEHOUSE BOOKSHOP

Opened by Estelle Cimino in November 1991, this downtown spot (472 Alvarado St.) has an airy and bright atmosphere that seems made for book lovers. "I've had a passion for books ever since I was a child," Estelle comments. Her caring can be seen in the full children's section, Arts, Self-Help, Business, Spirituality .....dozens of well-stocked categories. And the audio department delights with best-sellers read by excellent performers. "I really believe people come into a bookstore on a quest," she continues. "It's gratifying to be able to help our customers find the treasures they are seeking." The comfy coffee shop serves light lunches and desserts in addition to a fine array of espresso drinks. For-sale music CD's and cassettes provide a soothing and relaxing background. Computerized ordering. Magazines galore. Ample parking in rear lot. Hours: 9-10 Monday-Thursday; 9-10:30 Friday, Saturday. And 10-8 Sunday. 647-1822.

By John Detro

London by night

UNLESS MEMORY fails me, Hollywood actor Michael O'Shea played Jack London in the old filmic biography about that brawling guy who became a wealthy novelist.

Our literary news flash today: Jack's back.

The show stars Carmel actor/writer Taelen Thomas and it's called A Night with Jack London. Every Thursday evening for the rest of the year, two performances will be given at Carmel's La Playa Hotel — 6:30 and 8.

Admission's $8 general and $6 students and seniors. Seating is limited so reservations seem wise (624-4010).

The one-man, one-act, 45-minute play promises humor, lively stories, local history.

"Audiences will hear Jack reveal the joys and scandals of Carmel Bohemia between 1905-1910," Thomas says. "I've been told the show is 'excellent' as before or after dinner entertainment. The location offers beautiful views of sunset or fog as well as ample street parking."

In addition to the Carmel episodes, Jack/Taelen will include London's adventures as an Oakland street kid, oyster pirate, sailor, hobo, convict, Klondike gold-hunter, rancher, prolific author and eyewitness to the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

"At one point," Thomas adds, "Jack welcomes questions from the audience. That fact makes each performance different."

Concert too

And on Friday, Oct. 16, Thomas and harpist Elinor Bennett will celebrate their Welsh heritage with an 8 p.m. concert at Carmel Mission Basilica (event sponsored by the Welsh Society of the Monterey Peninsula).

Bennett has her progenitors' reverence for music. She's recognized internationally as one of the leading Welsh harp soloists and vocalists.

Her credits include concerts, recitals and master classes all over the British Isles, Holland, Belgium, Ireland, Austria, Norway, Italy, Germany, France, Australia and this country. She has made eight solo recordings and broadcasts regularly over BBC Radio 3.

For his part, Taelen carries on the Welsh love of dramatic oratory. On Oct. 16 he will perform works by Dylan Thomas and Robert Graves.

Thomas: "Dylan took poetry out of the hallowed, strictly metered halls of classic symbolism into the homes, streets, countryside and pubs of daily Welsh life. Graves strove to part the time-faded curtain of medieval mythic perception (and pipe into the true and Goddess-based language of bards). Both felt that poetry gives us a way to experience the divine."

These tickets ($10 apiece) will be available at the door. Reserved seating: 625-3140 or 375-5088.

One thing more. I was on the bill with Taelen and a few others for a poetry bash at Barbara Murphy's Portofino Cafe. The man brings great energy, wit, learning and affection to his chosen profession.

THE HEALER and counselor Patricia Lynn Mann will "guide an experiential journey and evening of transformation" beginning at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 14, in Pilgrim's Way Bookstore of Carmel.

She says: "Living from a place of Divine Will allows a more full connection to God and Divine Nature." Donation ($5 per) at the door.

Wolff talk set

THE CO-OWNER of Carmel Valley Chiropractic Clinic, Patricia Wolff (shown here), will be guest lecturer at Thunderbird For Kids Books and Toys in The Barnyard.

Dr. Wolff will speak from 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 8, looking at natural health care for children with an emphasis on homeopathy. The public is invited.

Theater scene: Moorer to play Hamlet

AS THE GroveMont Theater's Carmel Shake-speare Festival nears its final 1992 weekend, company founder Stephen Moorer reveals that his interpretation of the moody Dane — Hamlet — will highlight the same fest next year.

Moorer's news came during a conversation about the festival in general. After he said Hamlet will be done as part of the 1993 Carmel run, he was asked who'd undertake the title role.

"You're talking with him," Moorer declared. "I've been working toward this for many years. I feel ready, willing and excited."

Moorer also said paid admissions for 1992 already were "up by 20 percent" over last year's total of 1,200.

"The community and tourists have responded very well to the new repertory format," he said. "This way, people have been able to see both shows over a single weekend. Artistically, we've been pushed, and we've responded. So have the technical staffers — their work's better than ever."

The last performance of Macbeth will occur starting at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 9, at Forest Theater. Then the Othello will be staged Saturday and Sunday evenings at the same venue. Reservations: 655-3200.

At 2 p.m. Sunday (same site), Moorer will lead an informal public discussion on "Edward De Vere (17th Earl of Oxford) and the ever increasing Shake-speare authorship question." Public invited.

Ackermann offering

PACIFIC GROVE playwright Jean Ackermann's new one-woman show about Jessie Benton Fremont will get a reading at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, at Colton Hall Museum under auspices of that facility and Monterey Cultural Arts Commission.

Peninsula actress Marlie Avant will present the material entitled Whither Thou Goest on the 143rd anniversary of the signing of California's constitution. (The hall is where the convention met and that historic document was signed.)

The public is invited to the candlelight performance at no cost. Call 375-9944 for reservations.

After Oct. 13, the play will be available in two versions to conferences, groups, schools and "regular theater runs," Ackermann adds. Call 649-8215.

Rep unit

ON FRIDAY and Saturday, Oct. 9-10, Staff Players Repertory Company will offer the final three performances of the Philip Lewis comedy The American Dame — "how women got where they are today." Place: Monterey Conference Center's Steinbeck Forum.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. both nights. There will be a matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday.

All proceeds benefit Children's Experimental Theater. Call 624-1531 or 655-3200.

TV writers to give talks

Chris Manheim

Patricia Green

HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL television writers Patricia Green and Chris Manheim will describe their work when they speak on Friday evening, Oct. 9, at Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel.

Part of the library's Authors-by-the-Sea series, that program will start at 8 p.m.

Tickets still may be available ($12 each) at the library circulation desk. Only a limited number will be sold; there's no reserved seating.

Refreshments prepared by staff members will be served following the evening's question-and-answer period.

All proceeds go toward the purchase of books for the library.

Speakers donate their time.

Jewish Food Fest slated

THE FIFTH Annual Jewish Food Festival will happen on Sunday, Oct. 11, at Congregation Beth Israel in Carmel Valley (5716 Carmel Valley Rd.) from 10 a.m.-3 p.m.

Among the traditional Jewish foods offered will be kugel, latkes, cholent, lox and bagels, corned beef and pastrami on rye, matzoh ball soup, egg creams, rugallah, blintzes, mandel bread.

Parking and a shuttle will be available at nearby Carmel Middle School. Admission: $2 adults, $1 seniors and young people 18 or under, children below 12 free (proceeds benefit the synagogue).

This year's festival includes a food competition — open to the entire community — to see who makes the best chopped liver and the best cheesecake. Entries plus a copy of the recipe must be at Congregation Beth Israel no later than 11:30 a.m. festival day.

Among the judges are TV celebrity chef John Pisto, 1991 cheesecake winner Betsy Rosenthal and food writer Barbara Taylor. For more information, call Joyce Kurtz at 646-8234.

The fest also will feature live music, a children's play area, synagogue tours and drawings for such prizes as a New York trip for two, hotel stay and theater tickets.

Attorneys for Administrator
SHAWN OKUDA SAKAMOTO

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF SAN MATEO

In the matter of the Estate of GEORGE J. EUNO, deceased.
No. 94100

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE

NOTICE OF HEREBY GIVEN that, subject to confirmation by the above entitled Superior Court, at 10:00 a.m. on December 1, 1992, or thereafter within the time allowed by the law, the undersigned, as Administrator of the Estate of GEORGE J. UENO, deceased, will sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned all right, title and interest of the Estate of GEORGE J. EUNO in the real property located in the City of Salinas, County of Monterey, State of California, described as follows:

LOT 7, as shown on that certain map entitled, "TRACT NO. 365, Monterey Park No. 5", Rancho Nacional and Salinas City, Monterey County, California, filed May 24, 1960 in volume 7 of Maps, "Cities and Towns," at page 12, Monterey County Records, California.

This property is to be sold on an "as is" basis without any representation or warranty of any kind, express or implied.

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the offices of Bronson, Bronson & McKinnon, attorneys for the Administrator, at 505 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, California, or may be filed with the Clerk of the Superior Court or delivered to Mortimer H. Herzstein, at Bronson, Bronson & McKinnon, personally at any time after first publication of its notice and before making said sale. Any bid shall be accompanied by a cashier's check or certified check made payable to the Administrator in the amount of at least ten percent (10%) of the amount of the bid.

The property will be sold on the following terms: all cash. The property may be sold subject to any existing encumbrance. Taxes, rents, operating and maintenance expenses, and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of recording of conveyance. Examination of title, escrow charges, recording of conveyance, transfer taxes and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchase or purchasers.

The purchaser of the property will determine whatever damage there may be to the property solely by his or her own inspection of the property or may, at his or her own expense, have the property inspected by a licensed structural pest control operator, in which event the purchaser will rely solely on that operator's report and the purchaser's own inspection. The purchaser assumes sole responsibility for repairing all damage to the property whether undisclosed or disclosed by the purchaser's own inspection or inspection by any structural pest control operator or the operator's agents. The purchaser waives his or her right to recover from the Administrator or the decedent's estate for any damage not disclosed by the purchaser's inspection or revealed by any such structural pest control inspection report.

As a material consideration for the purchase of the property, the purchaser releases the Administrator and the descendent's estate from all liability even though it may later be discovered that the Administrator should have known of any damage not discovered by the purchaser's inspection or revealed by any such structural pest control inspection report.

The sale will be made without warranty as to: (1) condition of the land or the improvements; (2) zoning; or (3) permitted use of the property and without warranty of any other kind or nature.

The undersigned reserves the right to refuse to accept any and all bids.

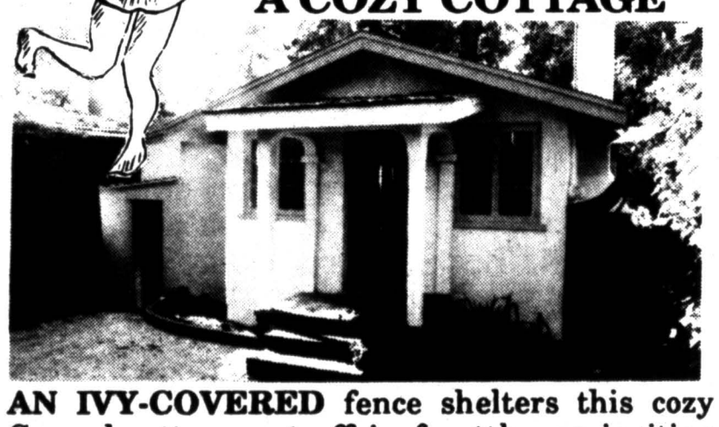
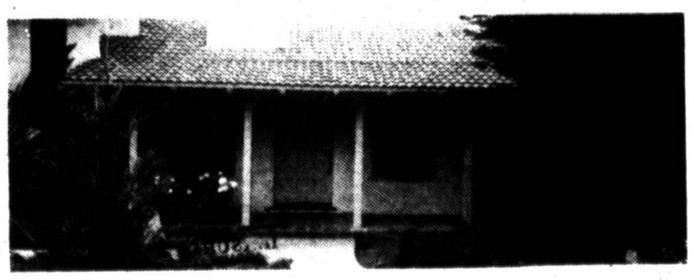
A COZY COTTAGE



AN IVY-COVERED fence shelters this cozy Carmel cottage, set off in front by an inviting bricked courtyard and in the rear by a sun-drenched deck. Inside, you'll find a pleasant living room with fireplace for cheery warmth on brisk autumn nights, and two nice bedrooms (the master has a vaulted beam ceiling to give an air of spaciousness). Altogether, a real charmer! $315,000.

IT'S STILL SUMMER...

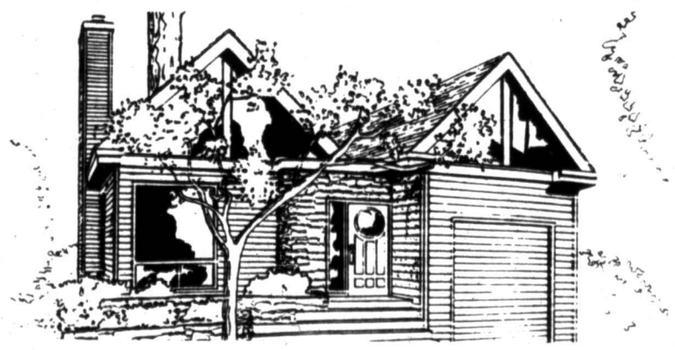


AT THIS HANDSOME Spanish-styled home with its sun-flooded patio and swimming pool in Tierra Grande, where the Carmel Valley's sunbelt begins. This immaculate home has four bedrooms, three baths, and loads of space for your family and friends. The large living room has an open beam ceiling and a fireplace faced with tile. Also on the main level are dining room, breakfast room, modern kitchen, two bedrooms, and bath. REDUCED to $559,000.

SPACE GALORE

ON A QUIET country lane in Robles Del Rio stands this warm and inviting three-bedroom home on a big two-thirds of an acre in size. Setting off the house is a wonderful big yard with a play area for the youngsters. Inside, a comfortable living room with brick fireplace, dining area, up-to-date kitchen, and spacious master bedroom with a sitting area and its own sundeck. Attractively priced at $379,500.

YOU MUST GO IN



TO SEE what this home offers! It's a home designed with your comfort in mind...and it's light, bright and cheerful, with a convenient floor plan to make everyday living as easy as possible. To the left as you enter is an attractive living room with a high ceiling, and to the right is a dream kitchen with skylights to let in floods of abundant light. Two private bedrooms and baths are at the rear. This home is close-in and within walking distance of everything in Carmel. And best of all, the price has been REDUCED to $695,000.

LOVE NEST IN THE WOODS

A CHARMING home nestled in Carmel Woods near the Serra statue with a versatile floor plan that will let you live in a manner to suit your lifestyle. There are two bedrooms, two and one-half baths, a remodeled kitchen, and a small office room. And, there's a big plus—an attractive GUEST UNIT with private entrance hidden in the trees. Shows well! $478,000.
